1913 Class of the La Crosse High School Gives Graduation Program to a Crowded House

WITCRAFT PROVES SELF ORATOR

First Honor Man Delivers Ringing Speech on "Possibilities of Undeveloped Wisconsin"

Before an audience that filled the La Crosse theater to the doors, 104 young men and women, the 1913 class of the La Crosse high school, received their diplomas last night at the hands of President William Luening, of the school board.

The presentation of diplomas was the last act of a program given by the class, which was received with appreciation by the audience. The program consisted of musical numbers, orations and recitations. The high school orchestra in the wings of the stage also assisted, and two numbers were rendered by the boys' Glee club.

Witcraft Speaks

Forest Emerson Witcraft, first honor man of the June graduates, who completed the four year course in three and a half years, delivered an oration of his own on "The Possibilities of Undeveloped Wisconsin." The address is to be submitted to the prize committee of the Wisconsin Bankers' association, which has offered a reward to the student in the state who delivers the best graduating oration on the subject of Badger state possibilities.

Mr. Witcraft is a brilliant student and has been the mainstay of the La Crosse debating teams during his school career. His address last night was delivered with telling oratorical effect which created a profound impression.

He opened his speech with a brief summary of the natural resources of Wisconsin, naming over the timber, mining and power possibilities of the state as enormous undeveloped sources of revenue. He declared that in the natural course of development the state could not but become a big factor among manufacturing commonwealths, because of its situation within reach of adequate food supplies, big markets and inexhaustible sources of raw material. To this, he said, was added the fact that Wisconsin had exceptional facilities for cheap power in the streams of the state. Only 13 per cent of the available water power in the state is being used, he said.

Agriculture Real Future

"But it is in agriculture," he continued, "that Wisconsin will find its real future. The farmer is the real lord of the land. It is no longer the fashion to call him a hayseed. The farmer is nowadays considered as important a factor in the life of the world as the white aproned scientist in his laboratory."

He cited figures to show the relative advantage Wisconsin has in soil fertility over other noted agricultural states, and added that there were still ten million acres of available farm land in the state which is not in use.

"Wisconsin is but on the threshold of becoming the dairying center of the world," Mr. Witcraft said. "She is already known as the greatest

WHO MADE UNCLE SAM PAY BILLS?

Lobby Probe Hunts Man Who Authorized Sugar Lobbyist to Print Document at U. S. Cost

SEE ABUSE OF FRANKING RIGHT

Sugar Man Testifies that Friendly Solons Have Saved Him $28,050 in Postage

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Determined to find out just where Truman Palmer, "sugar agitator," got authority that enabled him to assume charge of the printing of "Sugar at a Glance," the protectionist argument that was spread over the country under the franking privilege, the senate lobby investigating committee today subpoenaed senate and government printing office clerks. At the same time the committee sought the origin of the alleged senate order for thee publication, which appears in the front of the book. No official record had been found when the committee convened.

Palmer testified that he had been dissatisfied with the work done by the government and that he had compiled a new set of charts and had a new set of plates made, which he then turned over to the government. He read the proofs on the booklet and put in page after page of new matter, all written to show the dangers of free sugar.

Palmer today introduced into the record the list of publications which the beet sugar trust had sent over the country previous to November 11. He testified that since the latter date friendly senators and representatives had let him frank 1,525,000 pieces of mail at a postage saving of $28,050.

To Hit at Wilson

That President Wilson is to be made the target of a broadside of republican criticism for "interference" in the senate when the lobby investigating committee makes its report, was indicated today by Senator Townsend of Michigan and Senator Works of California.

Not only they propose to discuss what they call the "Wilsonizing" of democratic senatorial minds on free sugar and free wool, but they may play politics further by introducing a resolution redefining the respective powers of the executive, the legislative and the judicial branches of the government.

President Wilson is himself a "lobbyist" Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, charged to the senatorial investigating committee today. He declared the chief executive's "utterances threatening business interests" who might attempt to force a panic with prosecution was as much lobbying as the sort of campaign carried on by the sugar interests.

Worst Kind of Influence

"I have absorbed the idea," Gallinger asserted, "that the declaration from the seats of the mighty that men will be hanged higher than Haman; that industries which do certain things will be investigated; that a numerous and insidious lobby is trying that influence congress is about the worst kind of influence that can be imagined."

FORGETS ELECTRIC IRON; FIRE RESULT

Because she forgot to turn off the current when she put an electric flat iron away last night, Mrs. Barbara Paul was compelled to call in fire department No. 1 to save her home, 119 North Sixteenth street, from destruction. Mrs. Paul left the iron in a pantry with the electric wire connected. About midnight the heat generated by the electricity broke out into flames. The pantry was slightly damaged by smoke and water.

If Hubby Runs Away With The Cook, Just Blame It On The Day; It's Friday The Thirteenth, '13

Were you operated on unsuccessfully for appendicitis today? Did a hodful of bricks land on your bean? Did your wife spring a new hat on you? Did the cook leave in a huff? Did your tentist pull the wrong tooth? Did a book agent sell you eight volumes of junk? In short, have you been unlucky today?

If so, just blame it onto the date. Today's Friday, the 13th, '13—the "hoodoo day" of the year. And the only one, thank goodness.

A superstition may not be a noble or worthy emotion, but it's none the less a popular one. And the superstitious dread of the 13th numeral is felt alike by the natives of many lands. For instance, there is no street number 13 in France. The Italians omit the number 13 in making up their lotteries. There is a society of persons in Paris who are ever ready to attend a dinner which otherwise would have the fatal number of thirteen at the table.

Also Friday is an unlucky day. Maybe it's because a lot of people choke to death eating fish on Friday. Maybe it's because it's the last day before payday and most of us are up against it for the price of the beans. Just exactly why it is, we are not sure, but the fact remains that it is. And Friday the 13th makes a very, very unlucky combination. So Friday the 13th, '13, ought to be a great day for our little friend the Jinx.

Don't be furious if your wife elopes with the butcher's boy. Don't lose your temper just because she caught you embracing your stenographer. These little things are to be expected on "hoodoo day."

Be cool-headed about it—don't curse—and just blame it on the date.

SENATE COMMITTEE URGES SUFFRAGE

Recommend the Passage of Amendment to Constitution Giving Women Vote

PASS EVERY TEST OF CITIZENSHIP

Willing to Vote and Would Be Honest in Exercise of the Franchise Report Declares

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The senate's woman suffrage committee today recommended to the senate passage of the Chamberlain resolution for enactment of a constitutional amendment granting the ballot to women. Senator Ashurst of Arizona presented the report.

A vigorous appeal for votes for women was made in the report of the committee as written by Senator Ashurst. The majority declared that extension of the franchise to women is justified by "every test which students of government set down" for the enfranchisement of any class of citizens. These tests, the committee holds, are:

The Tests of Citizenship

Their willingness to vote; willingness to study questions voted upon, and the character and fitness of candidates; the likelihood that they will vote against dishonest persons, and dishonest measures; will refuse to be bribed directly, or indirectly; that they will place country above party; will recognize the result of elections as the will of the people, and therefore the law; who will continue to fight for a righteous, although defeated cause, so long as there is a reasonable hope of success; that women are able to write and read and are taxpayers.

Dodge Equality Question

"We do not feel called upon to discuss—even if debatable—the question as to equality of the two sexes, from an intellectual standpoint," the committee declared. "Government is strong or weak, capable or deficient, according to the people who control and make up the government. That the granting of the elective franchise to women would add to the strength, efficiency, justice and fairness of government we have not the slightest doubt.

"In this republic we are engaged in a struggle against fraud and violence, avarice and stupidity; a struggle in behalf of this struggle to add to the present class of voters one other—the women—in whom the materialistic is generally submerged for the idealistic; a class of voters which looks to all laws and movements as to how such laws and movements will effect their children; how such laws and conditions will promote morals, human health and human progress more especially and not as to how this or that particular law will serve material or property interest."

NEWS INSTINCT IS ALIVE TO THE LAST

Reporter Fatally Hurt in Wreck Orders Story Sent to His Paper and Collapses

SIX KILLED AND FORTY ARE HURT

Two Sections of Passenger Train on New Haven Road in Rear-end Collision

STAMFORD, Conn., June 13.—The death list resulting from a rear end collision between the two divisions of the Boston-New York passenger train on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad late yesterday was increased to six early today when Gregory T. Hummes, 34, a reporter for the New York World, died at he Stamford hospital.

Humes was found to be terribly injured when he was dragged from the wreckage. He gave orders that his paper should be called immediately and informed of the wreck. Then Humes collapsed.

In addition to the inquest, which was scheduled for today, Prosecuting Attorney G. A. Carter said that he would make a thorough investigation as to the cause of the wreck. Of the twenty injured several are still in a serious condition.

The Dead

In addition to Humes, the dead are: Frank Confield, Springfield, Mass.; Dr. H. G. Howe, Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, Winthrop, Mass.; Mrs. W. H. Zealey, Boston; Everett Hasley Woodruff, Flushing, L. I.; Engineer Charles Dougherty, who it is charged disregarded signals, was still missing early today as was his fireman. Attorney Carter said that his first efforts would be directed toward getting hold of the engineer and fireman.

The wreck was one of the most spectacular in the history of New England. Dougherty's engine ploughed its way almost completely through the rear wood constructed Pullman of the first section of the train. The sides of the Pullman spread apart and the engine was completely incased in the wooden car clear back to the cab of the engine.

GORDON, WIS., BURNS

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 13.—Plans for the rebuilding of Gordon, Wis., were going ahead rapidly today following yesterday's $100,000 fire which destroyed the business section of the little town. Volunteer firemen were unable to extinguish the flames which started in the general store of Kenneth MacLaggan, and before an engine from here could reach Gordon, the business section had been wiped out.

MARKETING BILL WILL BE PASSED

Will Have Good Features of McGovern Measure and Be Broader in Scope

UNDER INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

MeasureWill Save Expense of Creating New Board as Planned by the Governor

(By Joseph K. Kidder.)

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—(Special.)—There will be a marketing bill passed at this session of the legislature.

By its provision its entire operation will be placed under the jurisdiction of the industrial commission where it obviously belongs and obviating the necessity of a new commission as was advocated in the marketing measure proposed by Governor McGovern and which was rejected by a large vote in the assembly.

The new bill, it is said, will include all the features and accomplish all the ends sought to be accomplished in the governor's measure but will in many ways be broadened. In spite of all this the great expense, incidental to the creation of a new commission as proposed in McGovern's bill, will be eliminated and the operation of the bill will result in little or no additional expense to the state.

The additional authority to be bestowed upon the industrial commission, it is understood, will include the enforcement of the anti-trust law and the administration of all details of the new marketing bill as it affects co-operative production, marketing and buying.

The bill may be introduced Monday but this has not been definitely decided. The measure will be comprehensive and constructive and framed along the lines and by the same methods that have made Wisconsin's other great progressive measures the example for the nation.

The measure will be championed by the La Follette forces and will, in a word, be a fulfillment of the republican state platform pledges of 1912.

MAHONEY CHALLENGES THE ADMINISTRATION ON WATER COMMISSION

LAY BLAME TO CIVIL OFFICERS

Responsibility for Violation of Citizens' Rights Placed by the Senators

APPEALED AT ONCE TO MILITARY

No Attempt Made to Keep Order in Coal Fields by Legal Process

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—Responsibility for the violation of constitutional rights of citizens during the period when war time conditions existed in the coal regions of this state was placed squarely at the doors of the civil officers of Kanawha county before the senate strike investigation committee today.

No Attempt to Indict

Representative S. B. Avis, former county prosecutor, was grilled at great length by Senator Borah. He admitted that he made no attempt to secure indictments of men accused of crime. Instead he said he had called on the military tribunals to handle the situation. In extenuation, he declared a belief that no grand jury would have indicted or trial jury convicted any of those responsible for the murders, riots, and property destruction which terrorized the state.

"Do you claim that the state could not get justice because of this widespread bias and prejudice?" sternly demanded Borah.

"I certainly do," answered the witness. "Now, then," continued Mr. Borah, "will you explain to this committee how both sides could get a fair trial from a commission composed entirely of men who favored the state?"

The witness admitted that he could not answer the question.

The entire morning session of the committee was devoted to laying the foundation by the state and county authorities to having former Governor Glasscock called at the afternoon session to justify his declaration of martial law. Military and county officials were called to show that the civil courts were inoperative. But every witness under the sharp interrogation of Borah, admitted that at no itme during the entire controversy had the civil processes been in reality suspended or the courts closed. Rather they emphasized what the senators hold has already been proven, that no attempt was made to punish offenders by constitutional methods.

Indict Workers

While the comimttee was pursuing its probe, the return was made in the federal courts on the criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade indictments against the officers of the United Mine workers.

WOULD END TIPPING

DENVER, Col., June 13.—Abolition of the tipping evil through legislation in every state in the Nation was urged here today at the opening sessions of the two days' convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America. Nearly two thousand delegates with their families are in attendance. There was no doubt today that the resolution urging an anti-tipping law will pass unanimously. Other matters considered today related to better traveling accommodations and a closer affiliation between the Travelers' association and the Hotel Managers and Owners' association, in the interests of better accommodations at hotels throughout the country.

MERCURY VICTIM BETTER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 13.—Glenn Franklin, Delma, Iowa, has lain for four days between life and death at the city hospital here, a victim of bichloride of mercury poisoning. He claims he took the poison mistaking it for an asperin tablet. His condition is slightly improved today.

COOPERS GO BACK TO WORK TODAY

After more than two months of closed shop on account of the strike, both La Crosse cooperages opened for work today with the full complement of men back on the job. Although the controversy over wages has not yet been settled by the board of arbitration, the coopers voted to return to work. The arbitration board is holding daily sessions and it is expected that an agreement may be reached late this afternoon.

OLD FIGHT OVER WATER SYSTEM STARTED AGAIN

Says Plant Should Not Be Placed in the Hands of Men Who Fought It

INSINUATES POLITICAL SCHEME

Asserts Belief that Day Is Slated for the Superintendency of Water Works

MAYOR DENIES "FRAME-UP"

Declares He Never Discussed Matter with Day; Day Corroborates the Mayor's Statement

Mahoney's Attitude

Not opposed to waterworks commission if friends of water system are placed in charge, but would first try management by the present board of public works. Insinuates that administration advocates creation of commission to provide jobs for lame ducks. Accuses officials of "being interested in contracts" on the water works building.

Mayor Sorensen's Position

Denies that there is "frame up" to provide job for James Day. Says only purpose in advocating commission is to provide a business management of big utility. Would work for appointment of business men as members of commission.

James Day Statement

Not a candidate for superintendency or any other position under water works commission. Never discussed superintendency with any city official or alderman.

Asserting that he is not opposed to the creation of a commission to have charge of the new water plant if such men as Fred Copeland, Albert Hirshheimer and C. P. Thompson were named as members of the commission but expressing the belief that the plant should be operated "at least two years" by its friends and not placed in the hands of men "who have used every means at their command to defeat the project," Alderman P. W. Mahoney today in an interview fired a bomb into the camp of the Sorensen administration. Because of the fact that Alderman Mahoney and a majority of the aldermen signed a petition to the state legislature opposing the passage of the bill which has since been enacted into a law providing a waterworks commission in La Crosse if such a commission is voted by the council, it is the belief of political forecasters that the Mahoney challenge will result in a long controversy between the two factions when the question comes up for settlement in the council.

Alderman Mahoney added interest to his interview with the insinuation that the creation of the commission is a "frame up" to provide snug berths for certain "lame ducks" who were ground out of jobs in the political mill at the last election. He also makes the assertion that "even now prominent city officials are interested in contracts for the new water plant."

Mr. Mahoney's statement is given in full as follows:

"The aldermen who signed the protest against the passage of the bill which puts cities of the third class with cities of the fourth class, with reference to the water works, knew just what they were doing. In the first place Assemblyman Kneen sent me a copy of the bill after it had passed the senate with a notation to the effect that 'the administration' of the city of La Crosse wanted this measure. That was the first intimation I had of this bill. It would have passed that day if Assemblyman Hood had not objected. A majority of the aldermen knew nothing of this bill and were given no intimation by those who claim to be 'the administration' that such a bill was to be introduced or considered.

"Speaking for myself, and I believe that I voice the sentiment of most of those who signed the protest, I am not opposed to some change in the method of running the water plant and if I knew that such men as Fred Copeland, Albert Hirshheimer and C. P. Thompson could be made the commissioners I would not op-

BOSTON, June 13.—The final chapter of the trial of William M. "Taken as a whole, the evidence was unreliable and conflicting," according to the grand jury's findings.

WISCONSIN MAN APPOINTED HEAD

Chauncey Hyatt Gets Position in the Illinois Social Center

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—Chauncey Hyatt, who was graduated from the University of Wisconsin last June and who before his graduation had been swimming coach at the university for two years, has just been appointed director of the New Trier Social Center at Kenilworth, Ill., which is said to be the best equipped social center in America.

Among the equipment is a new township high school with laboratories, manual training and domestic science facilities, a complete men's and boy's gymnasium, a complete woman's and girl's gymnasium, a large swimming pool, a lunch room capable of serving a thousand people, a fully equipped theater, a library and a ball room. In addition to this model indoor equipment, Mr. Hyatt will have at his disposal several base ball diamonds, tennis courts, and other facilities for outdoor recreation. This plant, which cost nearly $400,000, has just been completed and was dedicated on June 8, the speaker being E. J. Ward of the University of Wisconsin extension division.

In order that the community may use these recreational facilities at once, Mr. Hyatt will take charge immediately, instead of waiting for the opening of the school year next fall.

Several tournaments, swimming contests and athletic events are being arranged for the summer months. These will be participated in both by young people and adults.

The New Trier Social Center has been pronounced the finest in America simply as a school, outside of the very largest cities; while for simply social and recreational purposes it is without exception the best in either a town or country community.

PUT AWAY PICKLES

Mathematician Figures Out the Food Question

If anyone requires a clear head it is a teacher of mathematics. He must reason in the abstract as it were, and full concentration of mind is necessary if correct results are to be forthcoming.

An Ohio man writes:

"I am a teacher of mathematics and for 15 years prior to four years ago, I either took a lunch composed of cold sandwiches, pickles, etc., to school or hurried home and quickly ate a hot dinner.

"The result was that I went to my afternoon work feeling heavy, dull of brain and generally out of sorts. Finally I learned about Grape-Nuts food and began to use it for my noonday lunch.

"From the first I experienced a great change for the better. The heavy, unpleasant feeling and sour stomach caused by the former diet disappeared. The drowsy languor and disinclination to work soon gave way to a brightness and vim in my afternoon work, a feeling entirely new to me.

"My brain responds promptly to the requirements put upon it, and what is of more importance, the results have been lasting and more satisfactory, the longer I have used Grape-Nuts as a food.

"My wife had been suffering from weak stomach accompanied by sick headaches nearly all her life. She is invariably relieved of these when she sticks to Grape-Nuts, either eaten dry or with milk. Her stomach has gradually grown stronger and her headaches less frequent since she began to eat Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. SCOTT BILL STIRS CAPITOL EMPLOYES

Measure Giving Department Heads Right to Fix Salaries Alarms Many

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—(Special.)—Senator Scott's bill giving the head of each department of government the right to fix the salaries of the different employes has stirred things up among capitol employes. Several legal opinions upon different provisions of the bill have been sought from the attorney general. In many of the departments there are a number of statutory positions, with a fixed salary, that will be wiped out of existence if this law is enacted. Assemblyman Holmes asked for an opinion as to whether "the mere changing of the name of the position by the appointing officer is sufficient to wipe that office out of existence, regardless of the fact that the appointing officer may require the same duties to be performed by another person holding under another title."

"As to subordinates whose positions are designated by title," says the attorney general in an opinion, "and the duties and powers of such positions and titles prescribed by the statute, it will be necessary, in order to preserve the duties and powers of such positions, to designate persons hereinafter appointed to such positions by the present statutory title. As to these positions, clearly there wil be no opportunity for department heads, should they be so inclined, by changing the designation of appointees to abuse the purpose of the law."

There are 3711 salary and wage positions in the state service. In 3,432 of these positions the salary is fixed by the state officials while in the remaining 279 positions the salary is fixed by the legislature. Senator Scott claims that these statutory provisions make it impossible for the civil service to work out any standard classification of service or gradation of classes and makes it impossible for the responsible oficials to administer their department economically and efficiently.

There is consternation among the employes as to what will be the effect of the bill. Many believe that salaries will be immediately cut by the heads of the departments in order to oust employes not favored by the departmental head.

Grandpa Bought Some Fireworks

Daddy's Bedtime Story— Their Fireworks Were Ahead Of Time.

FIRECRACKERS are out of style, so daddy told Jack and Evelyn when they begged for some with which to make lively the Fourth of July.

"We may have a few," daddy said, "but we don't want to scare the neighbors too much."

"I don't see how they could be scared," Jack urged. "They know we would be very careful."

"Ah, do they?" daddy answered, smiling. "That is very nice. Little Sammie Simpson was one of the very careful boys.

"Firecrackers were not the fashion in the town in which he lived. So the summer he went to visit his grandfather and grandmother he begged so hard to be allowed plenty of them that the old folks at last agreed.

"They had a large place, with no neighbors very close to them, and so when grandpa went to town he got some of the very largest firecrackers he could get. He also bought plenty of rockets and roman candles and colored fire for the evening.

"Grandma did not want them in the house, so grandpa put them in the shed, which was used for the storing of rubbish. Grandma felt uneasy about having them there, although it was quite a distance from the house.

"Sammie could hardly wait for the Fourth to come. He teased and teased just to be allowed to try one little cracker. So the evening before the Fourth grandpa said, 'Well, as tomorrow is the Fourth, I suppose we might try one of those rockets.'

"Grandma groaned. 'You'll be very, very careful,' she warned. 'You know it's a good while since you've sent up any rockets.'

"Grandpa laughed boyishly. 'As if I could ever forget how to send up rockets!' he answered.

"Grandpa and Sammie went out to the little shed in which the fireworks were stored, and grandpa picked up a rocket. He took it out into the yard and set it up. Now, you know, a rocket must be set into the ground very straight if you want it to sail up to the sky. perhaps grandma was right. Grandpa was a little out of practice. At any rate, when lighted that rocket sizzed and sputtered and with a sideway dive curved over and went straight into the door of the shed where the fireworks were. The floor was covered with shavings, and in a minute there was a display of fireworks such as had never been seen around there before. The fire company came to put out the fire, and there was a lively time for a little while. The shed was burned down, but no one was hurt except grandpa, who blistered his hands and face.

"The next day was the Fourth, and Sammie had no fireworks. 'And I guess I don't mind any,' he confided to grandma. 'We had plenty of fireworks last night.'"

LET THE COMMISSION'S PERSONNEL BE DEFENSE

We understand there has been criticism of the bill that has passed the legislature authorizing the city of La Crosse to establish a board of water commissioners to administer the new water works. While we have not read the bill, and therefore cannot discuss its provisions in detail, it is The Tribune's firm conviction that only through the agency of a commission of experienced business men can the new plant be operated with maximum efficiency and economy.

Much depends upon the character of the commission. If Mayor Sorensen and the city council are alert to the point, and we believe they are, they will name a commission the character of which will be a conclusive answer to all critics.

SEE OURSELVES AS OTHERS SEE US

No doubt members of the La Crosse board of trade, as well as manufacturers and business men in general, will be interested in the comment of newspapers in other cities upon our "Made in La Crosse Week." As we have scanned the exchanges considerable comment has come to our notice, and we have selected a few representative editorials for publication.

The Eau Claire Telegram makes the success of the La Crosse show the basis of an appeal for a similar enterprise in that city. We quote that paper:

"During the last week of May a 'Made in La Crosse Week' was held at La Crosse, Wis., under the auspices of the board of trade of that city. Although it was arranged upon but two weeks' notice, ninety-seven La Crosse factories participated and the showing was such as to astonish even well informed citizens. The enterprise has proved to be the most valuable attempt at industrial education in the history of La Crosse, and has awakened home pride and home spirit not heretofore experienced.

"The foregoing prompts the query: 'Why not a "Made in Eau Claire Week" in Eau Claire.'

"And we felt perfectly safe in answering the question by saying that Eau Claire could put on as successful, if not more so, an event of this kind as did La Crosse. The board of trade at La Crosse planned and carried out the 'Made in La Crosse Week;' the Eau Claire Business Men's association of this city could carry out such an undertaking here.

"The local organization certainly would experience no difficulty in assembling or arranging the material for such an event, for Eau Claire has an imposing array of industries and manufactories which would not hesitate to help the good work along. There is no question as to the value to the city and to its industries of such an exhibit. The chief benefit accruing therefrom would naturally be the advertising, not only for the industries and manufactories having exhibits and displays of their products or goods, but also for the city at large, for it would spread Eau Claire's advantages as an industrial and manufacturing center far and wide. Even the people of this city do not begin to realize the extent and variety of Eau Claire industries. Eau Claire products are to be found in far off Finland, Russia, Alaska, in fact, all over.

"A year or so ago there was quite an agitation here to promote or increase home patronage of Eau Claire made goods. It seems to us that a 'Made in Eau Claire Week' would do more to bring that about than anything else for it would acquaint the people of Eau Claire with this city's industrial and commercial enterprises.

"So it does seem that it might be well for the Eau Claire Business Men's association to take up the proposition and consider it.'

The Oshkosh Northwestern commends the La Crosse exhibition as worthy of emulation in a general way, and particularly does it approve the liberal publicity program of our board of trade. The editorial says:

"A fine example of what a little push and enterprise can accomplish in arousing home pride and encouraging home trade has recently been furnished by the city of La Crosse. On comparatively short notice the board of trade of that city arranged a 'Made in La Crosse Week,' resulting in an attractive and interesting exhibition of strictly home products and manufactures, participated in by ninety-seven business concerns of that city. In this manner the local citizens were informed and freshly reminded of the large and varied line of goods produced in their own city, which of course carried the additional reminder that by patronizing home industry they would be helping themselves and promoting the welfare of the city as a whole.

"According to the La Crosse papers the enterprise was highly successful, and the stimulation thus given to home pride and the home spirit is expected to result advantageously to La Crosse interests for many months to come. An interesting feature of the affair, and one that helps to account for its success was the liberal advertising policy carried out by the board of trade, which distributed a number of full page advertisements among the local papers, thus giving widespread publicity to the effort to advertise the merits of La Crosse-made goods. The entire enterprise was a fine exhibition of push and hustle for the advancement of community interests, and has set an example which other places may well consider and emulate."

Like the Eau Claire paper, the Madison State Journal urges the success of the La Crosse exposition as evidence that Madison, too, should "take a look at itself." Following is the Journal's comment.

"During the last week in May the La Crosse board of trade held a 'Made in La Crosse' exposition. Although it was arranged upon but two weeks' notice the results were such as to astonish even well informed and proud citizens. The enterprise proved to be probably the most valuable attempt at industrial education in the history of the city. Nothing before it has ever so awakened a home pride and spirit. What men have done elsewhere, men may do here. If Madison would once show herself what she is and what she can be she would be surprised and inspired. Let us, too, take a look at our town."

Lots of men who are so wise they won't take stock in a home industry will load up on mining and oil stocks of unknown value.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Little Country Town

The trees are all in blossom in the little country town;
The petals, white and crimson, are serenely drifting down;
The people greet their neighbors in the good old fashioned style,
And have time to let contentment fill their breasts a little while;
There are no commanding thousands, no complaints of selfish
wrongs,
There is no restraint of freedom and no frightful clang of gongs.

There are no unlovely barracks from which people madly rush,
Caring not for one another; there is neither noise nor crush;
There is leisure and there's pleasure
for the few who come and go,
Pausing now and then to gossip, with good wishes to bestow;
There is peace and there is patience,
there is hope and there is cheer,
All the scene is rich with beauty,
free from strife and strange to fear.

There is absence of the turmoil and the clash of class with class
That disturb the roaring city where the anxious millions mass;
Every garden is an Eden that grows
fairer day by day,
There are no mad monsters crushing
those who linger in the way;
Happy children play, untroubled by a greedy master's frown,
And there still is faith and friendship in the little country town.

The Forger's Specialty

"Now," said the warden to the forger, who had just arrived at the prison, "we'll set you to work. What can you do best?"

"Well, if you'll give me a week's practice on your signature I'll sign your official papers for you," said the prisoner. But there were reasons why the warden refused to do this.—Puck.

Jim Harris is a typical southern negro of the old school. Attached to Senator Overman's capitol retinue, he is entirely safe in his position. Nevtheless there are those who tease him over the adverse possibilities in view of prospective changes under the new democratic regime.

Jim always meets such bantering with good natured asservation of his confidence in holding on. In the course of one of his discourses on the subject he undertook to explain the reasons for his assurance.

"I'se defunct and destinct," he said, "and I feels pufec'ly safe in de comprehensiousness of my jurisdiction."

A Pitcher's Tragedy

Connie Mack, who takes great pride in developing young pitchers and then prophesying how they will show up in action, sent in one of his finds in an exhibition game not long ago. The slaughter of the young slab artist was pitiful to behold. At the end of the second inning Connie was somewhat peeved.

"What's the matter with you, son?" he asked the terrified youngster as kindly as he could—which was not remarkably kindly.

"I—I don't seem to be able to get the ball over the plate," said the pitcher, sadly.

"You're mighty right you can't get it over the plate," observed Mack, his peeved condition much aggravated. "And I'll tell you why. Every time you start it over they knock it back at you."—Popular Magazine.

Is this your boy?

Is he too weak and sickly to join his companions in play, and are you helpless in spite of your utmost efforts to make him well?

What have you done toward building up his blood? Pure, red blood is what he needs most, if he is to become active and strong. It is the lack of it that causes his pallor, listlessness, poor appetite, lack of ambition, sleeplessness and shortness of breath.

Have you given him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People? They are the remedy every growing boy or girl needs to build up the blood and bring health, strength, a good color, a hearty appetite and strong nerves.

Mrs. John Blake, whose address is R. F. D. No. 2, Verona, N. Y., says: "We had Howard treated by a doctor for several weeks but he became no better. He had scarcely any blood, was thin, weak and badly run down. We felt that something had to be done quickly and turned to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They started to build up his blood at once. His color became healthy, he grew stronger and in a few weeks was as well as ever."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are valuable in all diseases where the blood is at fault, as in chlorosis, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, headaches and all run-down conditions.

A Deluded Retriever

Flushed and breathless, young Binks at last succeeded in picking up the hat, blown by the wind, which he had been chasing vigorously along the street, and, with a sigh of relief, leaned up against a lamp post and, panting pitifully, tried to recover some of his exhausted energies.

Just then another man, also breathless, came running up, and, taking the hat from Binks' hand, remarked:

"I am very much obliged to you, sir."

"For what?"

"Well, this is my hat!" said the stranger, smiling.

"Your hat! Then where's mine?" gasped Binks.

"Oh, yours is hanging behind you at the end of a string."

Didn't Know When to Stop

"The great men are all dead," she said with evident regret.

"But the beautiful women are not," he replied, looking earnestly at her.

"Of course," she added, after a moment's reflection, "I always except present company."

"So do I," he said.

Then she asked if he would be good enough to conduct her to her husband.—Judge.

Their Passport

Senator Jones told, at a luncheon in Washington, a senate story:

"We'd be a hard lot, indeed, we senators," he said, "if we were as black as we're painted. I heard a dreadful story against us yesterday.

"Two ladies, it appeared, came to the visitors' gallery and demanded admission, but they had no cards.

"'If you have no cards, ladies,' said the doorkeeper, 'perhaps you know one of the senators, and can get a card from him?'

"'Oh, no, we don't know any senators,' they said hastily.

"The doorkeeper bowed low.

"'That ladies,' he said, 'is very much to your credit. Pass right in.'"

Mississippi has built 27 county agricultural high schools in the past two years at an average cost of $30,000 per school. These schools furnish board and dormitory facilities for $5.50 per month, and the boys and girls are paid a certain amount per hour for the work they do, so that in most cases the expense to the pupil is reduced to about $3 per month.

More to Come.

The Melting Of Molly

By Maria Thompson Daviess

Author of Selina Lue; Rose of Old Harpeth.

Copyright, 1912, The Bobbs Merrill Co.

"Nobody in this town could suit me better than Pet Buford for a daughter-in-law and I believe I'll have all the east rooms done over in blue chintz for her. I think that would be the best thing to set off her blue eyes and corn silk hair," she was saying as she cut orange peel into strips.

"You've planned the refurnishing of that east wing to suit the style of nearly every girl in Hillsboro since Tom put on long trousers, Bettie Pollard, and they are just as they have been for fifteen years since you did over the whole house," said Mrs. Johnson, as she poured a wine-glass half full from one bottle and added a tablespoonful from another.

"Well, I think he is really interested now from the way he danced most of his time with her down at the hotel the other night, and I have hopes I never had before. Now, Molly, do put him between you and her, sort of cornered, so he can't even see Ruth Chester. She is too old for him." And Tom's mother looked at me over the orange peel as to a confederate.

"Humph, I'd like to see you or Molly or any woman 'corner' Tom Pollard," said Mrs. Johnson with a wry smile as she tasted the concoction in the wine-glass.

"I have to put him at the end of the table because he is my kinsman and the only host I've got at present, Aunt Bettie," I said regretfully. I always take every chance to rub in Tom's and my relationship on Aunt Bettie, so she won't notice our flirtation.

"I'd put John Moore at the head of the table if I were you, Molly Carter, because he's about the only man you've invited that has got any sense left since you and that Chester girl took to visiting Hillsboro. He's a host of steadiness in himself and the way he ignores all you women, who would run after him if he would let you, shows what he is. He has my full confidence," and as she delivered herself of this judgment of Doctor John, Mrs. Johnson drove in all the corks tight and began to pound spice.

"He's not out of the widower-woods yet, Caroline," said Aunt Bettie with her most speculative smile. "I have about decided on him for Ruth since the judge has taken to following Molly about as bad as Billy Moore does. But don't you all say a word, for John is mighty timid, and I don't believe, in spite of all these years, he's had a single notion yet. If he had had he'd have tried a set-to with you, Molly, like all the rest of the shy birds in town. He doesn't see a woman as anything but a patient at the end of a spoon, and mighty kind and gentle he does the dosing of them, too. Just the other day—dearie me, Judy, what has boiled over now?" And in the excitement that ensued I escaped to the garden.

Yes, Aunt Bettie is right about Doctor John; he doesnt' see a woman, and there is no way to make him. What she had said about it made me realize that he had always been like that, and I told myself that there was no reason in the world why my heart should beat in my slippers on that account. Still I don't see why Ruth Chester should have her head literally thrown against that stone wall and I wish Aunt Bettie wouldn't. It seemed like a desecration even to try to match-make him and it made me hot with indignation all over. I dug so fiercely at the roots of my phlox with a trowel I had picked up that they groaned so loud I could almost hear them. I felt as if I must operate on something. And it was in this mood that Alfred's letter found me.

It had a surprise in it and I sat back on the grass and read it with my heart beating like a trip-hammer. He had sailed the day he had posted it and he was due to arrive in New York almost as soon as it did, just any hour now I calculated in a flash. And "from New York immediately to Hillsboro" he had written in words that fairly sung themselves off the paper. I was frightened—so frightened that the letter shook in my hands, and with only the thought of being sure that I might be alone for a few minutes with it, I fled to the garret.

Surely no woman ever in all the world read such a letter as that, and no wonder my breath almost failed me. It was a love-letter in which the cold paper was transsubstantiated into a heart that beat against mine and I bowed my head over it as I wet it with tears. I knew then that I had taken his coming back lightly; had fussed over it and been silly-proud of it; while not really caring at all. All that awful melting away of my fatness seemed just a lack of confidence in his love for me; he wouldn't have minded if I weighed five hundred, I felt sure. He loved me—really, really, really; and I had sat and weighed him with a lot of men who were nothing more than amused by my flightiness or taken with my beauty, and who wouldn't have known such love if it were shown to them through a telescope.

I reached into a trunk that stood right beside me and took out a box that I hadn't looked into for years. His letters were all there and his photographs that were as handsome as the young god of love himself. I could hardly see them through my tears, but I knew that they were dim in places with being cried over when I had put them away years ago after Aunt Adeline decided that I was to be married. I kissed the poor little-girl cry-spots; and with that a perfect flood of tears rose to my eyes—but they didn't fail, for there, right in front of me, stood a more woe-stricken human being than I could possibly be, if I judged by appearances.

"Molly, Molly," gulped Billy, "I am so sick I'm going to die here on the floor," and he sank into my arms.

"Oh, Billy, what is the matter?" I gasped and gave him a little terrified shake.

"Mamie Johnson did it—poked her finger down her throat and mine, too," he wailed against my breast. "We was full of things folks gived us to eat and couldn't eat no more. She said if we did that with our fingers it would all come up and we would have room for some more then. She did it and I'm going to die dead—dead!"

"No, no, lover; you'll be all right in a second. Stay quiet here in your Molly's lap and you will be well in just a few minutes," I said with a smile I hid in his yellow mop as I kissed the drake-tail kiss-spot. "Where's Mamie?" I thought to ask with the greatest apprehension.

"In the garden eating cup-cake Judy baked hot for both of us. She didn't frow up as much as I did—or maybe more." He answered, snuggling close and much comforted.

OLD POLO TEAM CALLED TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST BRITISH

After great trouble on the eve of the polo match, the old American team, consisting of Harry Payne Whitney, captain; Devereux Milburn, Larry Waterbury, and J. M. Waterbury, was called back to make the defense against the Britons.

They had been discarded by the managers of the Polo association a few days before the games, and then a new team, consisting of Foxhall Keene, captain, and Stevenson, Stoddard, and Milburn, was formed. Keene broke his collar bone two days before the first game, and that broke up the new team. The fact that Milburn was placed on both teams shows the regard in which he is held by polo players. He was considered the one man it was necessary to have. It has been said by good authorities that he is the best polo player in the world.

Bread and Superstition.

Bread is held in special veneration by Russian sailors, who often seek to appease "the angry spirit that troubles the waters" by casting loaves into the sea. Greek sailors, too, carry with them small loaves, called St. Nicholas bread, which they throw into the sea in times of storm. A superstition current among seafarers of all nations is that it is unlucky to turn a loaf upside down, the idea being that for every loaf so turned a ship will be wrecked. —London Chronicle.

CHINDA ASKS REPORT

JAP AMBASSADOR TO U. S. WOULD KNOW DETAILS OF SEIZURE OF AMERICAN YACHT

TOKIO, June 13.—The foreign office today received from Viscount Chinda, Japanese ambassador at Washington, a cabled request for a report on the seizure of the American yacht Columbia owned by J. Harvew Ladew, in the closed port of Nagahama.

In the American colony here it is said that the Ladew party were on their way to St. Petersburg over the Siberian railway. This would indicate that they were not aboard the yacht at the time the port authorities took possession. The official procurator of Nagasako has issued a statement saying the "arrest of the American yacht was a formality and had no political significance."

Premier Yamamoto today speaking to the newspapermen said that he deeply regretted that the California alien land question is still pending.

Above the Law.

Under the international law a monarch is above any legal consideration such as hampers a subject, however illustrious. Should he refuse to pay his hotel bill he could not be sued for it. In the improbable event of the king of England knocking down a Frenchman in Paris or a Prussian in Berlin no policeman could lay hands on him. As a matter of constitutional law the king of England was at one time a sort of prisoner in his own country. Before the advent of the Guelphs the act of settlement forbade the sovereign to go outside his dominions without the consent of parliament. The act was only repealed after the accession of George I. —Pearson's Weekly.

ANNIVERSARY OF FLAG TOMORROW

Star Spangled Banner 136 Years Old; Now Symbol of a Mighty Nation

NATION WIDE OBSERVANCE

Thousands of Flags to Flaunt Nation's Pride in Red, White and Blue

A nation-wide observance of Flag day will take place tomorrow in commemoration of the 136th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes. This flag day will be the seventeenth year that this day has been observed. Yearly it becomes more general.

On the 14th day of June, 1777, congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white;

that of the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of the stars having been increased by the admission of new states, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon the fathers, and original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: 'That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes alternate red and white, that the union be twenty stars, white, in a blue field, and that on admission of a new state into the union, one star be added to the union flag, and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission."

Since the struggle of 1861-1865, the flag has become the symbol of a mighty nation. It has been carried to the utmost parts of the earth, carrying liberty wherever it has been thrown to the breeze.

Scratching the Head.

Do savages scratch their heads? All puzzled or bewildered Europeans scratch their heads—the German slowly, the Frenchman jerkily, the Italian nervously, the Englishman vigorously. It is difficult to account for this universal white man's expression of puzzledom unless he has an instinct that the titillation of the scalp wakes up the brain. Uncle Remus scratched his head when the little boy's questions were particularly perplexing, but Uncle Remus may have learned the trick from his white masters. Did his aboriginal forbears scratch their heads in the presence of an aboriginal problem?—Chicago News.

Cinderella.

It was in ancient Egypt that the story of Cinderella originated. Moderns, however, owe the familiar nursery story directly to the Frenchman, Charles Perrault, whose "Cindrillon" appeared at the end of the seventeenth century. Perrault took his Cinderella from earlier versions, which came no doubt from the story of "Rhodopis' Bath." That Egyptian beauty had prepared to bathe when an eagle swooped on one of her slippers, carried it to Memphis and dropped it on the lap of King Psammetichus as he sat administering justice. He admired it, had Egypt searched for its owner, married her and lived happy ever after.

Height of the Clouds.

There is no fixed height for any kind of cloud. Some remarkably interesting measures of the height of clouds have been made at Vienna by an ingenious method. Advantage was taken of the extremely brilliant light furnished for a great illuminated fountain erected in that city. By means of a projector it was found that a beam of light could be sent up to the clouds, producing upon them a luminous spot capable of being observed simultaneously from points on the earth two or three miles apart. By such observations the height of certain clouds of the cirrus variety was found to be as much as 10,000 meters, or nearly 33,000 feet.

Handing One to Father.

They have a wise ten-year-old boy in an east end family, and some of his sayings are really worth peddling. At least, his father thinks they are, or he wouldn't tell this one.

The other day the youngster approached the father and stared at him for some time.

"Daddy," he finally said, "you think mamma is the most beautiful person you ever saw, don't you?"

"Of course," replied the father, with great promptness.

Again the boy scrutinized his parent.

"Gee, daddy," he finally said, "it's an awful pity she can't say the same about you, ain't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

MOTHER CONFESSES TO AXE MURDERS

Declares Temporary Insanity Caused Her to Slay Husband and Little Daughter

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., June 13.—Mrs. Ida Kellar is today held on the charge of murdering her husband, Arthur Kellar, a railroad laborer, and their seven year old daughter Margaret. The two were slain with an axe while asleep.

Following severe examination Mrs. Keller confessed that she killed them both, saying that she only realized the deed when she found herself washing the victims' wounds. She declared that her mind wandered at times since she received an injury on the head some two years ago. Officials believe the woman is insane.

At the time of the murder she told a story of an axeman who killed Keller and a girl who killed her.

URGE EASIER DIVORCE

MOVEMENT UNDER WAY IN ENGLAND TO MAKE INSANITY GROUND FOR ABSOLUTE SEPARATION

LONDON, June 13.—Declaring there are between 60,000 and 70,000 certified lunatics in England who are bound by the marriage tie and whose wives or husbands, as the case may be, are doomed to a life of celibacy, Lady Willoughby de Broke, vice president of the Divorce Law Reform union, today announced that Sir David Brymor Jones has consented to introduce in parliament a bill which will extend the grounds on which divorces may be granted. At present infidelity is the essential ground of every absolute divorce proceeding. Lady Willoughby today explained the proposed changes.

"We base our demands for the changes on the general ground of human happiness and morality which cannot be served under the present laws. It is true that legal separations which prevent remarriage are granted for persistent cruelty, continued desertion, habitual inebriety, neglect to maintain, etc., but this is not enough. It is preposterous to demand that innocent victims of drunkards, wife beaters or lunatics be forced into a life of celibacy or immorality. We maintain that whatever justifies lifelong separation also justifies absolute divorce with the privilege of remarrying for the innocent party. We believe with the royal commission which recently completed an exhaustive inquiry into this question that absolute divorce decrees should be granted for infidelity, desertion for three years, cruelty, insanity after five years' imprisonment, habitual drunkenness found incurable after three years, and imprisonment for life."

NEBRASKA METHODS CALLED ANTIQUATED

MADISON, June 13.—Methods of conducting legislative business which in Wisconsin are antiquated are still in vogue in the Nebraska state capitol, and A. E. Sheldon, director of the Nebraska legislative reference bureau has written Secretary of State Donald for information on the Wisconsin way. According to his letter, in Nebraska the enrolling of bills is done by hand instead of by typewriter, and the old custom of keeping a manuscript journal is followed. Bills calling for amendments of existing statutes are printed without any typographical changes to indicate what sections or clauses are amended or added, thus necessitating a personal study of the old statutes to ascertain the effect of the proposed amendments. Other methods not conducive to facility in conducting sessions are followed. Secretary of State Donald will forward samples of bills and journal entries to show how the Badger system works.

THE FUTURE.

A Fair Basis.

"Now, girls," began the head of the visiting committee, "we wish to test your powers of observation. I will ask each girl to describe some building she passed on her way to school."

"That seems hardly fair," replied another member of the committee. "Let us rather ask each girl to describe some hat."—Pittsburgh Post.

CALLS UNIVERSITY "DYNAMO STATION"

New Yorker Who Lectured at Madison Has High Praise for State School

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—"An educational dynamo station" is the descriptive term applied to the University of Wisconsin by William F. Seward, librarian of the Binghampton, N. Y., public library, in an article in the Binghampton Press. Mr. Seward recently delivered two lectures before the students of the Wisconsin Library school in this city.

In his story, filed with the color of college life, he says:

"Co-education at Wisconsin seems to mean co-operation, and the attitude of the male toward the 'co-ed' is that of sympathy, interest, helpfulness. The names given to shaded lanes and isolated boulders indicate that co-education at Wisconsin is interpreted by the students in a broad and liberal spirit and embraces many subjects.

"The women's gymnasium is in Lathrop hall, an imposing building of Wisconsin sandstone. It is also a theater with two auditoriums and a Janus-faced stage; a concert hall, and above all makes an admirable floor for co-educational dancing, and the young men wear business suits. The ready made clothing men with their absurd pictures of 'smart' college clothes certainly did not go to Wisconsin for their models. Flannel shirts are permissible.

"The university grounds would cover the 'business center' of Binghampton and then lap over."

FITZGERALD TIGHT IN APPROPRIATIONS

New York Representative Careful but He Spends More Than Any Two Men in World

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Representative Fitzgerald of New York probably spends more money than any other two men in the world. And he isn't a spendthrift, either. On the other hand, there are some who will tell you that he's the tightest tightwad who ever strangled the eagle on a silver dollar. As chairman of the powerful appropriations committee he theoretically handles every cent Uncle Sam spends. There are continually some thousands of people trying to tell him how to spend the money and that makes it hard for him. He told some of his troubles today.

"Being chairman of this committee," said Representative Fitzgerald, "requires infinite guile. Some congressmen and department officials stay awake nights thinking up things to slip over. Shortly after I took the job, Director Holmes of the Bureau of Mines came dashing into my office, 'Good morning. I've got to have $250,000 quick. We're going to be thrown into the street in Pittsburg because the war department which formerly occupied the buildings there, wants them again.' And Holmes was going to be 'thrown out' in the hope of getting a quarter of a million for other quarters. He didn't get it and he wasn't thrown out.

"Another little instance was when the civil service commission insisted on having $11,000 to buy steel files to keep 'valuable records' in. Inquiry developed the fact that the 'valuable records' were the examination papers of every one who has ever been in the service, from janitors and charwomen up. My argument against the appropriation was that the best thing that could happen was to have the commission's file cleaned out by having those alleged 'valuable records' burned up at the earliest opportunity. There's little hope of that however, for the commission is housed in a fireproof building. In spite of the wooden files the 'valuable records' are still intact. Also I might add that Uncle Sam did not waste that $11,000.

"It was the same when ex-President Taft's economy commission came to us for $500,000 the first year and $250,000 the second year to determine just what course it would take in effecting future government economy. Goodness knows what they would have wanted after they had spent $750,000 learning what they wanted to do."

The Presents.

She (after the quarrel)—Leave my presence! He (confused)—Why—er—you've got them all!—Judge.

WILL AMEND THE "BLUE SKY BILL"

Many Arguments Before the Committee for Changes in the Measure

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—Several amendments will be made to the "blue sky" bill introduced by the senate corporations committee before it is recommended for passage. The bill gives the railroad commission power to authorize the issuance of stock. E. E. Bowler of Sheboygan appeared before the committee and argued that the bill should exempt the stocks of a corporation, where those stocks are sold only to people within the county where the corporation is domiciled. He also said that he believed that the bill should permit a person to sign a waiver, after he had made an investigation of a concern, saying that he did not desire the authorization of the railroad commission for the stocks, which he proposed to purchase. He thought that the provisions of the bill should not apply to gifts or bequests of stocks or transfers of stocks taen in settlement of indebtedness.

E. J. Furlong of Milwaukee said that the minimum penalty of $500 was too high. He did not object to a minimum of $5,000, but said that the way the bill was framed it would compel a judge to assess a penalty of at least that amount even for an innocent violation of the provisions of the bill. It was also suggested that the railroad commission should be given the power to authorize the sale of stocks in this state listed on any reputable stock exchange. The bill recognizes the New York stock exchange, when securities have been listed for one year.

J. H. Kiel of Milwaukee, representing the American Bankers' Casualty company, thought the bill should be made stronger. He could see no reason for exempting stocks approved by two or more bankers. He could see no reason for exempting stocks approved by two or more bankers. He thought there should be a provision in the bill limiting the amount that may be spent by a new concern for organization purposes and that the stock purchaser should be advised definitely on this subject when making the purchase. S. J. Glass of Milwaukee thought the different stock exchanges should be recognized and that the railroad commission should even be permitted to recognize some stocks that are sold on the curb. Senator Bosshard said today that several amendments will be offered to the bill before it is recommended.

All in the Size.

"And now," said the grade teacher, closing a lesson in fractions, "who can tell me how many quarters in a whole?" A small, begrimed hand was raised, the teacher saw it, and awaited the answer from Tommy. "Why," said he, with great assurance, "it depends on the size of the hole."—Indianapolis News.

MANY VTERANS TO GO TO GETTYSBURG

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—(Special.)—Because so many veterans of the battle of Gettysburg desire to attend the fiftieth anniversary there on July 3, this year, the committee on finance has introduced a substitute bill appropriating $5,000 additional. Early in the session Senator Bishop introduced a bill calling for an appropriation of $10,000 to pay the expenses of sending the heroes of this battle who are now residents of Wisconsin to the scene of the battle at the time of the anniversary this year. Requests have been coming in so fast for reservations at the office of the adjutant general that it was found necessary to introduce a supplemental bill to take care of all who are entitled to the offer. The bill has been passed upon favorably by the finance committee and has been referred to the senate calendar.

DIRECTOR OF TWO MINING COMPANIES KILLS PRESIDENT OF CONCERNS IN A STREET QUARREL

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 13.—George Margaretie, president of the United Gold Mines and Golden States Mining companies, was today shot and instantly killed by Mieho Ziblich, local oyster king and director in the two concerns.

The two companies which recently combined are capitalized at two and a half millions. The two men quarreled in the street over the last payment on 10,000 shares of stock.

"He was a frenzied financier and I'm glad I killed him," shrieked the slayer in his cell.

Letters and papers taken from the dead man show he was recently in St. Louis, Chicago and New York, attending stockholders' meetings in Australian colonies.

ENNIS PASSES WESTON

HORNELL, N. Y., June 13.—Edward Payson Weston, strolling from New York to Minneapolis, arrived here from Addison, where he spent the night, shortly before noon today. John Ennis, who left New York 24 hours behind the famous walker and passed him at Corning yesterday, reached here two hours ahead of Weston. Weston today said he would pay no attention to the time Ennis makes as he declared his cross-country hike is not in any sense a race.

ESCH TO SPEAK AT U.C.T. PICNIC

Tax Commissioner Frisch Declines; Has Laryngismus Complicated with Chilblains

Congressman John J. Esch will be the principal speaker on the program at the U. C. T. picnic which will be held at Myrick park tomorrow. Congressman Esch will talk on the Panama canal, a subject he is well qualified to discuss, having made two visits to the "big ditch" during the course of its construction.

Mayor Ori Sorensen will make the speech of welcome, several hundred of the picnickers being expected from out of town. It is expected that at least 2,000 visitors will arrive on a steamboat excursion from Lansing, Iowa, alone. The response to the mayor's welcome will be delivered by Prof. Ellis of Lansing.

An elaborate program of athletic events has been arranged by the committee, the prizes for which are now on exhibition in a window at the Stringer and Steinmetz cigar store.

Upon announcement that one of the speakers would be unable to appear, Secretary Ed Steinmetz attempted to secure the services of Tax Commissioner Joseph Frisch, who has acquired the reputation of an orator in city hall circles, but Mr. Frisch pleaded a bad attack of laryngismus. Mayor Sorensen, however, insisted today that Mr. Frisch's symptoms appeared to indicate chilblains rather than an affection of the throat.

A brass band will furnish the music for the afternoon and evening.

He closed with an appeal to Wisconsin young men not to emigrate west or south to states of less opportunity.

"We are saying good-bye to the high school and hailing the broader activities of life," said Miss Janet Anderson, in delivering the "Hail and Farewell" address which was the last oration on the program. "While school has been a preparation for life, we must also consider that our four years of training have been life itself, as well. In the high school the struggle for advancement and success is found, just as it is found in the world outside of school."

Miss Anderson's address was received with a storm of applause, as was every other number on the program. Following is the program presented:

LABOR HEADS ARE INDICTED AS TRUST

Criminal Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade Charged to Mine Workers' Union

UNIONS' EXISTENCE IMPERILLED

Labor to Fight Indictment Clear Up to Supreme Court if Necessary

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—Leaders of the United Mine Workers from every section of the country gathered in the little federal court house here today to answer to the first indictments ever returned in this country against a national labor organization, charged with being a criminal conspirator in restraint of trade and foreign commerce.

Under this indictment, secretly returned by the federal grand jury last week, all persons concerned admit the very existence of labor unions as at present constituted is imperilled. Because of this fact, it has been agreed that the issue raised shall be fought to the utmost, and, if the union men indicted are convicted, the case shall be carried to the supreme court of the United States for final settlement.

But because neither side had fully determined just what should be done, no definite action was taken today and a partial agreement was reached that, so far as the merits of the controversy are concerned, the real fight shall be postponed until next fall.

United States District Attorney Ritz and Attorney Davitt, for the accused miners, agreed to ask Judge B. F. Keller to fix bail in each case at $1,000 each. Representatives of an eastern bonding company are enroute here to qualify and it was the plan of both sides to have all of the men indicted under bond by tomorrow night. No arrests were made. The men, following the indictment were notified to appear today personally, or by attorney, and this notification was followed to the letter.

The men accused are John P. White, Frank J. Hayes, Thomas Haggerty, Joseph Vasey, James Cantrel, Charles Batley, Marco Roman, Geo. H. Edmonds, Benjamin F. Morris, Thomas Cairns, Clarence C. Griffith, James M. Craigo, James Dean, John Nutter, Rome Mitchell, W. S. Reece, F. D. Stanley, W. S. Cantley and A. D. Lavender.

AVIATOR'S COAT TAIL BURNS OFF

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—Tony Jannus, St. Louis aviator, landed at Alton, Ill., this morning with the tails of his coat burned off, on the first lap of his journey by air to Chicago to take part in the aviation meet in progress there.

Jannus started from the foot of Market street with Arthur Isaminger as a passenger. Shortly before they arrived over Alton one of the guy wires of the machine snapped and Jannus shifted his position to equalize the strain on the other wires. He was compelled to sit so that his coat tails hung over the exhaust of the engine, and when he stopped at Alton to repair the break discovered his coat tails had been burned off.

The aviators remained in Alton half an hour while the machine was being repaired and Jannus got another coat before resuming the journey.

TO PROBE FRISCO

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 13.—Preliminary investigation of the 'Frisco affairs leading up to the receivership will be opened here in a few days according to messages from New York. An agent of the interstate commerce commission called at the New York 'Frisco office, but learned that no serviceable records are kept there. He was referred to the St. Louis headquarters, where he was told he and other representatives of the commission would receive every facility.

MISSES HOLD AND FALLS UNDER CAR

Harry Kelly Mangled Under Burlington Freight Train but Will Recover

In trying to catch a swiftly moving extra freight train on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad at 1:30 this morning at the crossing between the State road and Mormon coulee road, Harry Kelly, 36, Danville, Ill., missed a rung of the iron ladder and was dashed under the train. When found by Conductor Orville B. Orton, who was in charge of the train, and the crew, he was unconscious. One of his arms was badly mangled, his head and collar bone were crushed, and several ribs were broken. Dr. A. A. Maurer was summoned and Kelly was taken to the La Crosse hospital, where Dr. Maurer found it necessary to amputate the arm.

Man Is With Him.

Traveling with Kelly was a man who gave his name as Tom Miller, East St. Louis, Ill., who said that he and Kelly were on their way to the northwest from St. Louis. He said that they had caught freight No. 2121 at Prairie du Chien early in the evening, and had been put off near the crossing at Mormon coulee road by Brakeman Roy Davis who found them in an empty box car. Kelly and Miller were carrying a suit case, and had thrown the case into the side door of the moving train as it passed, with the intention of riding to the first stop and then getting into the car.

When Kelly recovered from the effects of the anesthetic in the hospital this morning he was in a serious condition, although he talked a little. He said that he and Miller were old time pals and had traveled several summers together.

Police Hold Miller.

Miller was held by the police last night, but upon the statement by Kelly in the hospital this morning that they were fast friends, Miller was set free.

Kelly's injuries will confine him to the hospital for some time, but he will recover.

ERLICH APPEALS TO THE CIRCUIT COURT

Nathan Erlich and Mrs. Lillian Johnson were found guilty of living together in a house at 325 North Tenth street, and given their option of paying $100 fine each or spending three months in the county jail by Judge John Brindley in county court late yesterday. Both were released under $100 bonds pending an appeal to circuit court.

According to testimony by members of the police force who made the arrest in the Tenth street house at midnight, June 4, Erlich had rented the house and purchased furniture and the two were living there as man and wife. They said the arrest was made on complaint of a neighbor who telephoned to the central station.

A. C. Wolfe, attorney for the defendants, appealed to the circuit court on an interpretation of the statute.

FIRST SPRING HAY COMES TO TOWN

The first load of spring hay was brought into the market this morning by Nick Kaiser from Campbell. It was followed by another load by Anton Laskaskie from his farm on French Island. An abundance of old hay is being brought to the city daily, the farmers being desirous to making room for the new hay which will soon be ready to cut.

WOODHEAD HEADS AD MEN

BALTIMORE, Md., June 13.—With the election of William Woodhead of San Francisco, as president, and the selection of Toronto as the next meeting city, the Association of Advertising clubs of America today ended its convention. Chief of the day's work was the adoption of a sort of "Sermon on the Mount" desiaration of advertising principles, written by William C. Freeman of New York.

EXONERATE OFFICIALS

LONDON, June 13.—The Marconi investigating committee of the house of commons today rendered a majority report exonerating David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer and Sir Rufus Isaacs, attorney general in the Marconi scandal. The majority report declared the two officials to be blameless in their American Marconi dealings, saying that they acted throughout in the sincere belief that their transactions did not conflict with their official positions. There was not the slightest evidence of corruption, the report said.

"Committee of Fifteen" Alleges that Vice Lid Is Off Again in Chicago

OFFICIALS GET HEADS TOGETHER

Mayor and Chief of Police May Order the Properties to Be Vacated

CHICAGO, June 13.—Having publicly named the owners of property in which sixty-two immoral resorts are conducted and charged that the lid on the redlight district is off again, the "committee of fifteen" who demanded that city officials take action, rested on their oars today and waited for Mayor Harrison to move.

The mayor, chief of Police McWeeny and Dr. George B. Young, health commissioner, were scheduled to hold a conference today. They will determine whether or not to act upon the committee's demand that the property designated be declared public nuisances by the health commissioner and ordered vacated under an Illinois statute.

Several reputable citizens named by the committee as owners of property used for immoral purposes, entered pleas of ignorance today. In nearly every case they declared that they turned the property over to a real estate broker and knew nothing of the character of the persons who leased.

The committee's report was based on the work of ten expert investigators who spent several weeks tracing the ownership of property in the vice district.

OIL LAID ON THE NORTH SIDE STREETS

The oiling of sixteen blocks of north side streets was completed by Street Commissioner George Falk yesterday and it is expected that the dust settler will be applied to an equal amount within the next week or ten days. It required but three days to lay the car load of oil on the sixteen blocks, a remarkably short time, made possible by a new system of heating the oil invented by Mr. Falk.

The oil has been applied to Avon street from St. James to Clinton, on Clinton from Caledonia to George, on Kane from Clinton to Gohres. The next carload will be put on Charles, Berlin and George streets.

John Vollmer, who has in charge the public baths on the Pettibone island beach, today announced that new piling is being built into the bath houses and that all will be in readiness for the opening of the public baths as soon as the water warms up. A goodly number of youngsters have been unable to wait for the official opening and the ancient sign of the lifted two fingers has again caused a popular rush for the "swimmin' hole." The boys can be seen enjoying the water any of these warm days.

MANY ARE TARGETS FOR CUPID'S DART

The open season for lovers being now officially under way, Dan Cupid, only licensed hunter, is daily registering big bags at the county clerk's office. Cupid is said to be in excellent form this year, with the result that few of his arrows are wasted. The best day's hunting this June was recorded yesterday, when the naked little god came in with four brace. Marriage licenses were granted each couple as certificates to Cupid's unerring aim. The couples were Paul W. Heyer, New Lisbon, and Helma C. Hougen, La Crosse; Joseph E. Sieber and Louisa Steinke, La Crosse; William Koeller and Marie Durhammer, La Crosse, and Henry Leichtman, New Hampton, Iowa, and Jennie Skalbarg, of Minneapolis.

APPLICANTS FOR LICENSES SLOW

But fifty applications for liquor licenses have been made at the office of City Clerk E. H. Hoffman in spite of the fact that only four filing days remain. All applications must be made to the city clerk's office on or before June 18, according to the law, so that the applications may be advertised three times in the local papers before action by the city council. It is expected that more than 100 additional applications will be made by next Wednesday.

WALKS FOR HOUR WITH BRAIN PIERCED

MILWAUKEE, June 13.—The ability of John Schaus, 45, to suffer pain and his fear of doctors, may cost his life. After walking up and down in front of Emergency hospital for more than an hour he entered and allowed physicians to dress the hole in his head, made by a pick in the hands of a fellow laborer.

Physicians said today the pick, covered with dirt and cement, penetrated the man's brain an inch and that probably he would die.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Street Commisioner George Falk's report on the cost of street cleaning, the theater license ordinance and the Rybold "strike breaker" ordinance will be the most important business up for consideration at the regular meeting of the common council tonight.

SCOUT CAPTAIN IS KILLED IN BATTLE

Taylor A. Nichols of 51st Philippine Scouts Falls in Fight with the Moros

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Fragmentary reports of the battle between American troops and Moros received by the war department today indicated that Captain Taylor A. Nichols, 51st company of Philippine scouts, had been killed with three other members of his company, whose names were not given. First Lieut. Edward Rackley of the scouts, was slightly wounded. The dispatch was evidently filed with a fuller report, but this has not yet been received here.

Captain Nichols was the only American named as killed. The cable was signed by Gen. Pershing.

It was assumed here that the engagement began on June 11. Captain Nichols and his men were killed on the 12th. The dispatch said that the fight occurred on the rim of a crater. Gen. Pershing declared that "no fiercer battle had occurred since the American occupation." Retreating, the tribesmen took refuge in forts and trenches on the precipitous sides of the volcano and vigorously defended themselves, having modern arms and ammunition. The American forces finally took their position by use of mountain guns. The Moro loss is unknown but an outlaw leader, Amil, and others were reported killed.

pose putting the water works in their charge.

Says Board is Friendly

"We are now constructing the new water plant and it is in the hands of competent engineers and a friendly board of public works. It should be given at least two years' trial by its friends and not be placed in the hands of men who have used every means at their command to defeat the project, and who no doubt would delight in seeing the present plan prove a failure.

"One feature of the law is particularly objectionable. The mayor becomes one of the comission and he appoints one alderman which no doubt will give two votes to the mayor out of five. Does anyone doubt who could be appointed under the present administration from the council? Certainly none of those who favored the well system. For reference see present committee appointments. So in case the council should adopt this law it would start the system with the handicap of two at least who were not in sympathy with it. There is also no doubt in the minds of some that the man slated for superintendent of the water works is ex-Member of the Board of Public Works James T. Day, another of the promoters of the filtration of the Mississippi river sewerage, and who never ceased his opposition until after it was taken out of his hands.

To Furnish a Soft Snap

"The citizens should not permit themselves to be deceived. The great anxiety at this time to 'monkey' with the water works is not in their interest. It is to get control of the completion of the water plant and that is just what this law will do if adopted by the city. It is to furnish a soft snap for an ex-member of the board of public works and others. Even now prominent city officials are interested in contracts for the new water plant.

"To summarize: I am against this measure at this time for the reasons:

"1. The governing body of this city was not given an opportunity to express itself on the queestion.

"2. The water works plant is not completed, and should be completed under the supervision of friendly engineers and a friendly board of public works.

"3. The new water system should be given a fair and thorough trial by those friendly to this project, viz., the present common council and the board of public works.

"4. The additional expense of a superintendent of water works and a clerk, amounting to several thousand dollars, is wholly unnecessary at this time, and is not warranted by the city's financial condition.

"5. The new plant will be far less difficult to operate than the old and should be operated at much less expense but if we start out with an expensive corps of unnecessary officers and employes, the economy that we expected would result from this new system will not be realized.

"6. There has been a material improvement in the board of public works. It is working harmoniously and efficiently and we can trust it for another two years while this plant is being built and tried out.

Another Board Unnecessary

"In closing I wish to say that the reason why cities of the fourth class had this law is because very few of them if any have a board of public works, and it was necessary to have someone in charge, hence the provision for a superintendent of water works. In La Crosse we have a board of public works that devotes all of its time to the city's affairs and the water works is under their care. We are paying the board of public works for this service and what is the sense or use of paying others for doing their work.

Absolute denial that there is a "frame up" to put James Day, former president of the board of public works, in charge of the new water plant when it goes into operation was made by Mayor Ori Sorensen today. "I have not discussed the superintendency of the water plant with Mr. Day at any time," he said. "The only purpose I have in advocating a commission government of the water plant is to insure a business operation of that big utility. If the plan is adopted by the common council I shall do everything in my power to get good clear headed business men on the commission. The matter of superintendency of course will be settled by the members of the commission."

That he is not a candidate for the superintendency or any other position under the proposed water works commission and that he had never discussed the superintendency with any city official was the announcement of James Day today. Mr. Day outlined his reason for answering Mr. Hood's alleged argument that he was a candidate as follows:

"I understand Assemblyman C. L. Hood has said he opposed the bill authorizing this city to create a waterworks commission because he understood that I was a candidate for the office of superintendent under the commission.

"Please say for me that I am not a candidate for the superintendency or any other position under the proposed board of waterworks commissioners, and that I have never discussed the superintendency with any city official, alderman or private citizen.

"I make this statement, not because I care to recognize Mr. Hood's sham argument, but in order that the proceedings looking to the creation of the commission shall not be hampered by any misunderstanding calculated to create dissension."

HOLD COURT IN REVENUE CUTTER

U. S. S. Thetis Sent to Alaska to Straighten Out Legal Tangle of a Year

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Unique among the chancelleries of the earth is the cabin-court of the United States revenue cutter, Thetis. Once a year this sturdy little ship is sent far into the frozen north where the Eskimos, miners, traders, fishermen and others, may air their grievances before a representative of Uncle Sam's judiciary.

Under the northern lights and the midnight sun, in the cabin of the Thetis, these people bring their difficulties and legal tangles to be unraveled. The Thetis has gained the title of the "Floating court of the rough Alaskan seas" and among the outlaws it is known as the "Terror."

Opens July 13

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo today signed orders which designate the Thetis to open court for the third judicial district, embracing the Bering sea islands and Alaskan ports, at Valdez, July 13. On board will be Judge Peter D. Overfield, selected by Attorney General McReynolds to preside and his assistants, Lieut. Frank L. Austin, Charles F. Seiter and Warner K. Thompson, of the Revenue Cutter service. During the court's session these men will be United States comissioners. Lieuts. Thos. A. Shanley, Clarence H. Dench and Stephen S. Yeandle will assist in the capacity of deputy United States marshals.

The difficulties that beset the officials of the floating court are many and varied. There are no police in that country. When an offender hears that the Thetis has reached port he generally takes to the hills and the officers of the court generally pursue. Frequently they are captured and prosecuted but often they are able to evade the officers by remaining in concealment until word is received that the court has sailed. Officials of the revenue cutter service in Washington who have served in judicial capacities aboard the Thetis say that a general exodus of natives to the interior commences every time the ship touches at Point Barrow, Port Clarence, or any other of the principal ports of the far north.

Many Divorces

Under the Eskimo laws it is the custom for parents to maintain control of their children even after they are married. Consequently the number of divorce cases and domestic quarrels that are heard every year is astounding. Mothers who are dissatisfied with their daughter's husbands or their sons' brides bring their troubles before the presiding judge. Of course, the wives and husbands themselves are given equal privileges.

Once upon a time, it appears in the Thetis' docket, there lived in a little village on St. Lawrence island an Eskimo famed for his strength and prowess who stole another Eskimo's wife. The wife stealer had swiped other wives and had made it hot for the bereaved husbands who tried to get their mates back. This Eskimo, realizing his physical weakness, and not wishing to suffer bodily harm through any attempt to recover a mere wife waited until the Thetis touched port with the court aboard, and asked justice. Captain Henderson, at that time in command of the ship, put ashore to arrest the wife stealer but that worthy had taken to the hills and could not be found. But St. Lawrence island has never again been troubled by his depredations.

Cold Blooded Animals.

The so called cold blooded animals vary from the warm blooded in the particular that their blood changes temperature in accordance with their surroundings. The temperature of a fish will be almost exactly the same as that of the water around it, possibly one or two degrees higher. A snake's temperature is higher in summer than in winter, the average being 82 degrees. A bird's average temperature is 107. The average temperature of the mammals is 101 degrees.

A Painful Face.

"My face pains me, doctor. What shall I do?" asked the patient.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied the truthful doctor. "You know I have no way of improving your looks."—London Telegraph

Mrs. Keepup made it her private and particular business to have whatever her neighbors had, whether it was a question of chickens or diseases, so when Mrs. Gotthere complained to her one day of insomnia Mrs. Keepup was ready for her. "I have it, too, very badly at times."

"What do you do for it, Mrs. Keepup?"

"Why, I have never found anything that did me any real good except just to go to bed and sleep it off."—New York Post.

NEW YORK USES WISCONSIN LAWS

Secretary of the Industrial Board Spends Day in Madison Studying Effect

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—(Special.)—New York is making use of Wisconsin's laws on industrial safety and sanitation as enforced by the state industrial commission. John R. Shilladay, secretary of the industrial board of the New York state department of labor, spent Monday here in studying the operation of these laws.

"I came to look into the practical work done by the Wisconsin commission, which has excited very great interest and approval by all interested in social legislation in the east," said Mr. Shilladay. "I had already read, before coming here, the bulletins of the commission and gained a full appreciation of its great work. I think we shall organize advisory and consulting committees representing the employers and employes along lines similar to those in Wisconsin."

Speaking of New York's advance in industrial legislation, Mr. Shilladay said the industrial board has been reorganized as a result of legislation growing out of the shirtwaist workers' fire when the Asch building was burned two years ago. The general staff of the department of labor has been greatly increased and new departments and positions created more fully to meet the situation. The new industrial board has been given power to formulate rules and standards relating to fire prevention and the protection of employes in industry and from occupational diseases. The board has the same general powers as are vested in the Wisconsin commission, but it has no administrative functions, its jurisdiction extending only to formulating rules and standards.

PROTEST FOR WOMAN

ROME, June 13.—The National Council of Women today made formal protest to the government for alleged discrimination against Signora Lancelot Croce in a recent government competition for artistic designs for the new mint. The work submitted by Signora Croce won for her the appointment of head engraver of the mint. Later she was notified that she could not have the place, as the position, entailing grave responsibility and discipline, was declared to be too much for a woman to fill. The National Council of Women is confident that the minister of the treasury can be induced to revoke the latest order and give Signora Croce the position. If this is done Signora Croce will have one of the highest official positions under the Italian government occupied by a woman.

Dynamite.

Dynamite is less dangerous than nitroglycerin. The fatalities caused by nitroglycerin in transport in England had such an effect on the public mind that in 1869 an act was rushed through parliament excluding it from the British market. Two years previously to this Alfred Nobel, after experimenting with sawdust, brick dust, paper, rags and numerous other materials, had discovered that kieselguhr would absorb nitroglycerin and render it safe to handle. The new explosive, christened "dynamite," made him a millionaire.

The Great Danger.

"What do you consider the chief danger of wealth?" asked the solemn man.

"That the other fellow will have it," responded a hearer inclined to flippancy.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Too Placid.

"She doesn't think much of her husband."

"No?"

"No. She says even the things he says in his sleep are terribly dull and uninteresting."—Detroit Free Press.

Tattle Tale?

Kitty (to her mother)—Mr. Spooner knows that my face is all the fortune I possess. Willie—Yes, ma, and when I sneaked into the parlor he was trying his best to get at her fortune.—Washington Star.

The Honor of Brave Men.

"You refuse to fight me?"

"Certainly."

"I believe you are a coward."

"Of course you do; otherwise you never would have dared mention the matter."

He Didn't Mind.

"I suppose, Jerry," said the eminent statesman, looking through his pocketbook for a new dollar bill, "like a lot of other people nowadays, you would rather have clean money?"

"Oh, that's all right, senator," said the cabman. "I don't care how you made your money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Queered Himself.

Jackson—Bunker has got himself into a nice fix. Johnson—How? Jackson—He wrote an article on "The Ideal Wife" for a ladies' paper last month. Johnson—Well, what's that got to do with his present fix? Jackson—Somebody told his wife about it, and she's been reading the thing over during the past two days trying to discover a single trait wherein his ideal resembles her. She hasn't found it, and Bunker dines in the city now.—London Answers.

Lives of some men oft remind us to ask: "What's the use?"

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Jack says: "I need a good nerve tonic. I have to work very hard and am becomnng almost a wreck."

Answer: Your condition is very common especially among brain workers. Make the following tonic by mixing syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cadomene (not cardamon,) 1 oz.; and take a teaspoonful before each meal and in a few weeks your strength will be restored.

Mr. B. D. asks: "Is it safe to reduce one's weight? I weigh 240 pounds and would like to reduce at least 40 pounds. What is a safe, harmless remedy?"

Answer: Obtain of any well-stocked druggist a tube of 5-grain arbolene tablets and take as per directions accompanying. These tablets are very easy to take and quite reliable for obesity or goitre.

"Miss K." writes: "Could you publish a remedy for liver and kidney trouble and the usual diseases that arise from that source. I am troubled with dizzy spells, dark spots before my eyes and also with rheumatism."

Answer: If you will get three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), and take according to directions, you will not only be relieved, but if you continue the use of these tablets you will be gradually cured of all the troubles you mention. They will purify the blood and also cure your rheumatism.

"Worried"—Your child can be easily cured of bedwetting by using tincture cubebs, 1 dram; tincture rhusaromatic, 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Give him 10 to 15 drops in water before each meal. This is equally good for older people.

"Virginia" writes: "I suffer greatly with catarrh, bad breath, headache and pain across my eyes. Only my nostrils and throat are affected. Could you prescribe a remedy to cure me?"

Answer: The following local treatment should be used: Obtain a two ounce original package of Vilane powder, put one-half teaspoonful in a pint of warm water and snuff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils several times daily until they are cleaned thoroughly. To one ounce of vaseline or lard mix one teaspoonful of Vilane powder and apply twice a day well up into the nostrils, and your catarrh will soon vanish. This should be used at intervals to prevent a recurrence. I have received hundreds of letters from grateful people who have used the above prescriptionn and been cured from that dreadful disease, catarrh.

"Hannah" writes: "I would like to get something that would make my hair soft and fluffy. My hair is greasy and I can do nothing to keep the oil out of it."

Answer: To take the surplus oil out of the hair and keep it soft and fluffy, get a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow minyol and use it regularly. This will cure itching scalp and dandruff and make the hair grow, and you will not be bothered with stringy, straggling locks.

"Louise" writes: "I do not weigh enough for my height. I am dull and lifeless and have frequent headaches. Please advise what will help me."

Answer: Your condition is due to the lack of red blood corpuscles. I can prescribe nothing better than three grain hyponuclane tablets, which can be purchased at any up-to-date drug store in sealed cartons with full directions. These tablets will cause the body to assimilate the fatty elements of food and thus give you strength and added color to the skin. Your weight will increase and you will not be troubled with headache. These are recommended by physicians and if taken according to directions you will surely gain flesh.

"Troubled Miss G." writes: "Every winter I am troubled with severe attacks of rheumatism which sometimes keeps me in bed for weeks. Please advise something for me."

Answer: My favorite prsecription for rheumatism, and one that I know has cured thousands of people, is made by mixing: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Take one teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time, and you will soon be cured.

"Annette" writes: "I have been greatly annoyed lately by coughing and a tickling sensation in the throat and hoarseness after singing. My bronchial tubes are affected also."

Answer: You can be very easily using essence mentho-laxene. This using essence mentholaxene. This relieves quickly and certainly brings about a cure, by its tonic and laxative action and therefore is superior to ordinary preparations, which only relieve. You can feel the medicine working on the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, giving a feeling of freshness and strength to the entire system. Purchase a 2½ oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to the directions on bottle and take eight to ten doses daily and you will soon be cured of your trouble.

"N. L. O." writes: "Have suffered for years with stomach trouble and constipation. Have tried many 'cures' but they did not even relieve. I have great pain at time, especially after I eat."

Answer: Obtain tablets triopeptine and take according to directions. These tablets are pink, white and blue. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, a white tablet after dinner and a blue tablet after supper. Regular treatment with these tablets will cure any case of stomach disorder.

Watching The Scoreboard

The Athletics put a knot in the rope that may keep them from slipping in their climb for the pennant by taking the first game of their series from Cleveland. If they win the series they will just about be disappearing over the hills.

Bedient held the St. Louis Browns to four hits. Stovall got two of the collection with a double and single.

The Yankees turned their third home victory at the expense of Cobb and the rest of the Tigers. Schultz held them to five hits. Cobb got a double, stole third and scored Detroit's only run.

The Cubs touched Rucker for 13 hits and the Dodgers are now on the verge of tumbling into fourth place.

Wagner liked the Giant brand of pitching, connecting with a double and two singles in four times up, but the Pirates lost despite five errors by the Giants. Fletcher had three errors at short, Doyle one and Myers one.

The Braves found a combination to discourage ninth inning rallies, when Maranville, McDonald and Myers pulled a triple play on the Reds, ending the show. Almeida helped the Reds along toward their game with a triple and two singles.

Alexander managed to squeeze through with a victory over the Cardinals and in addition to his pitching cracked out a double and two singles.

ALL CREWS NOW READY FOR RACE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 13—All the crews to participate in the annual regatta here a week from Saturday were on the ground today following the arrival of the Syracuse squad yesterday. The Syracuse shells had arrived earlier in the day and they joined the other crews today in a practice spin. Coach Conibear of Washington still sends his men out once a day. The western eight rowed down the river about six miles and came back with the tide.

Profitable Begging.

"Mr. Scribble," called out the old millionaire. "I see we received 150 begging letters yesterday, and every one had a two cent stamp inclosed for a reply."

"Yes, sir."

"Well, answer them evasively on postal cards, and encourage them to write again."—Exchange.

FIGHT AT BUTTE

BUTTE, Mont., June 13.—This is miners' day in Butte and as the headliner of a series of athletic attractions, Jimmy Clabby and Eddie McGoorty, who boxed ten rounds to a draw at Denver a few months ago, are scheduled to renew middleweight activities tonight in a twelve round bout. The men weighed in at 158 today.

KLAUS TO AUSTRALIA

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 13.—Frank Klaus, Pittsburg middleweight champion, now at Camden, N. J., will be matched for a series of bouts in Australia, is reported among his friends here. It is said the trip would prevent Klaus from returning to Paris for another bout with Carpentier.

Why They Came.

Willie, aged four, had been invited out to tea with his mother, and while he was being dressed for the occasion the delights in store for him had been depicted in glowing terms.

While his mother chatted with their hostess Willie sat in solemn silence, and at last the lady of the house rose.

"Now I must bring in tea," she announced, then added, "Would Willie like some tea?"

The child eyed her in astonishment and, in a deeply hurt tone, responded: "Why, that's what we came for!"

CHAMPION SPELLER OF WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON.—Frank B. Willis, ex-schoolmaster, is the champion speller of Washington. Senators, correspondents, cabinet officers, and other officials fell before him when he appeared at the "spellin' bee" of the National Press club.

Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, the only member of the upper branch of congress who puts himself down in the directory as a progressive, stood to the last, or almost the last, with the Ohio representative. Then the secretary of agriculture, the former president of a college, who acted as spelling master, put to him a hard word. He stumbled.

"It's easy," said the Ohio man. "it's hydrasephalus."

The charge has recently been made in New York that the school teachers there—there are some 11,000 of them—can't spell. Willis has proved it's different in Ohio.

POLO MATCH SATURDAY

NEW YORK, June 13.—An even greater crowd than that which witnessed the first polo game in the international series between the American and English teams was expected at Meadowbrook tomorrow when the challengers will meet the "Big Four," headed by Captain Whitney for the second time. Every seat in the stands has been disposed of and hundreds of applications were turned down today. It is considered certain that the standing room about the field will be jammed, and that the crowd will exceed 30,000.

Yell Defiance at Blood Disorders

A Remedy That Has Shown a Most Remarkable Purifying Effect.

At Last You Can Get Rid of Blood Troubles—S. S. S.

The word medicine is one of the most abused in our language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take, for example, the well-known tonic medicine S. S. S. This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the elements of wheat, roast beef, the fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact, there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, falling hair, loss of weight, thin, pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced as spring fever. Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life. S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice and a special book of instruction. S. S. S. is sold everywhere by drug stores, department and general stores.

NO FEAR OF U. S. INCOME TAX LAW

Officials Believe Measure Will Have No Adverse Effect on State Law

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—No detrimental results are feared by Wisconsin tax officials as a consequence of the proposed income tax law as it would work out in this state, where a state income law is in operation.

"We do not expect that the federal income tax if adopted will exercise an adverse effect upon the administration of Wisconsin's income tax law," said Thomas S. Adams, member of the state tax commission. This commission has long held to the belief that a state income tax, as contrasted with the federal income tax, has more natural advantages than disadvantages.

Prof. Adams explained his views on the relation of federal and state income taxation thus:

"A great majority of taxpayers in Wisconsin have incomes of less than $4,000. This group of taxpayers would not be affected at all by the federal tax. With incomes between $4,000 and $24,000, taking account of the federal exemption of $4,000, the rate of federal tax will be only 1 per cent. This is not large enough to create any grave burden or to cause texpayers either to leave the state or to falsify their income tax returns. Persons with incomes in excess of $24,000 are subject under the proposed federal law to an additional federal tax which on very large incomes rises to 4 per cent. Multimillionaires with incomes in excess of $100,000 a year would be subject to a rate of 4 per cent on part of their income under the federal law and to 6 per cent on the same part under the Wisconsin law. This would be equivalent to a tax of 10 per cent on amounts in excess of $100,000.

"Double income taxation of this kind by national and state governments is common in Europe. Compared with the rates imposed in some of the Swiss cantons and a few of the states of the German empire, such a rate is not excessive, particularly when the fact is considered that Wisconsin wholly exempts from property taxation moneys and credits. It is possible that a millionaire or two may leave the state of Wisconsin in order to escape a 10 per cent income tax. He may, however, rush from the frying pan into the fire and find himself, when his residence is changed, in a community imposing the ordinary property tax on moneys and credits which, when converted into terms of the income tax, frequently amounts to a tax from 30 to 40 per cent.

"If the federal officials will cooperate with the state officials of Wisconsin in administering the federal law within the state of Wisconsin, the benefits of this joint administration will greatly outweigh the slight ill effect that a federal tax might possibly exercise in causing a few very rich men to take up their residence in other states."

Prof. Adams has recently been to Washington, where he conferred with congressional leaders relative to a proposed clause which the Wisconsin tax officials are anxious to have inserted in the federal bill. Under it, state officials would have the right to examine returns made under the federal law, thus providing a check on the making of fraudulent returns.

NEW POLICY LAID DOWN IN BILLS

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—A new policy is laid down in two bills introduced by Assemblyman Estabrook of Milwaukee that have just been signed by the governor in giving cities and counties the right to segregate a portion of the territory that shall be used for factory purposes. The bills only apply to the city and county at the present time. Several members proposed to extend their right to all cities but Assemblyman Estabrook feared that a general amendment would endanger the passage of the bills.

The governor has signed the bill requiring the report to be sent to the state board of health of all communicable diseases; the Jenson bill requiring reports from school officers to be sent to the county superintendent before Aug. 1; the Nye bill requiring the construction of pedestrian passage ways over interstate bridges as soon as the railroad passage ways are completed; the Halmes bill giving the railroad commission power to inspect railroad tracks, and the Goff bill for the location of slaughter houses at least half a mile from a roadway.

Significant Johnson.

Men who become suddenly rich should be judged leniently. They have many temptations from which the rest of us are happily delivered. Mr. John Johnson, a man of this class, was desirous to be known as of a literary turn of mind, and to that end proceeded to purchase a library. One of his purchases was an old dictionary, which, being somewhat out of repair, was sent to the binder. When it was returned to the purchaser he found printed on its back the words, "Johnson's Dictionary." The slight threw him into a furious passion, and he demanded of the messenger:

"Why didn't he put the full name on, 'John Johnson's Dictionary?'"

"Dear, dear, dear!" exclaimed the good old lady after she had finished the popular novel that had been recommended by her beautiful granddaughter. "Just to think of it! EVIL HABITS.

Do not contract evil habits. If persisted in they will surely change one's nature. The worst penalty of evil doing is to grow into likeness with the bad, for each man's soul changes, according to the nature of his deeds, for better or for worse.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

JULIE O'NEIL'S ROSES

By A. MARIA CRAWFORD

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Two or three of the men here are ready to propose to you, but the three roses you invariably wear baffle them and make them afraid," said Kate Brandon, who was entertaining the far-famed Irish beauty, Julie O'Neil. "Don't wear roses to-day to the garden party, but adorn yourself with Bob Telford's sweet peas. I suppose it is habit or some fetish fancy that makes you select those pink roses and wear them every day, but be a dear and break the habit for my sake. I want to settle you here so that we can live in the same town again. Remember what great times we used to have at home?"

"Indeed I do, and when you married Tom Brandon and moved here, the old place was certainly lonely." Julie was brushing her long wavy black hair and Kate, admiring her, thought what a beautiful picture she made in her pink negligee, with her arms, white as marble, lifted over her head.

"You are beautiful, Julie. If I were a man, I would steal you and run away."

"Hear, hear," laughed the girl, "even you grow anxious over my state of single blessedness."

"No, it isn't that, my dear. I really want to see you as happy as I am."

"And I would like to be as happy as you are, Kate."

"Julie, I want you to marry Bob Telford. He is a great catch, attractive, clever and counted rich even among very rich men. He is also obviously in love with you. Won't you leave off the three roses tonight? They seem to voice the sentiment of an engagement ring, a sort of 'hands off' sign. You understand."

"You are so dear to me and have been since we were children that I would gladly do anything in the world for you, anything except what you ask. Forgive me this time. I promise to leave off the roses after tonight."

"All right," laughed Kate. "I know now that there is some warm and vital sentiment back of your predilection for three pink roses. This is the last night of June. Let's make the most of it! To me, it is the romance time of all the year."

"Perhaps that is why I wear the roses."

"I won't question you any more, Julie. You never would tell anything unless you really wanted me to know. Are you going to wear that white lace gown on the bed? You look like a princess in it."

Kate had been gone for just a minute when she came back to Julie's door. "By the way, Phil Shields is in town. I told Tom to invite him to our garden party. I haven't seen him since you turned him down the night of my wedding. There never was such a pretty maid of honor, and never, to my notion, such a splendid best man as you and Phil made that memorable night. I heard that he married two or three years ago. Old wounds have to heal, don't they?"

"Isn't it well that they can heal? Pain is such poor company. I think perhaps it will be best to wear Bob Telford's flowers tonight instead of the roses. Will you have them sent up to me, please?"

"Indeed I will, gladly," agreed Kate heartily.

When the great bouquet of sweet peas tied with soft tulle had been brought to her, Julie held them in place, studying the effect. From somewhere near came a deep, rich baritone voice singing, "Oh, Thou Sublime, Sweet Evening Star," with violin accompaniment. Julie dropped the flowers on the dressing table and turned to the window.

Across the fragrant summer night throbbed Wagner's wonderful melody. Julie pushed the curtains aside and looked out, her eyes as bright as the stars that pierced the dark sky with silver light.

The garden below her window had the appearance of fairyland. Lanterns twinkled through the trees like giant fireflies in the night. Servants were taking a last look at the little flower-laden tables, and the sound of approaching automobiles told of early guests. The last note of the singer died away, and Julie, flushed and a little breathless over awakened dreams, caught up three half-blown pink roses in a little vase on the desk and, drying the stems, fastened them on her breast with a corsage pin of diamonds and pearls.

Later, on Telford's arm, she made a round of the tables, where little supper parties were making merry.

"I think Kate has made a match between her guest and Bob Telford," Julie heard one woman say, and, turning presently toward the sound of the voice, she saw Kate's sister-in-law and a man who looked strangely familiar. He turned then and she met his eyes, gravely questioning her. Her youth came back to her suddenly on a flood of memories.

She went toward him smiling, confident in her acquired self possession. "I am glad to see you, Phil. Mr. Telford, I want you to know Mr. Shields. He was a friend of mine when I was very young and unsophisticated."

The two men exchanged greetings. Telford wondered at the cool indifference of the stranger. He seemed almost hostile in his attitude.

"May I talk to you for a little while?" Phil asked Julie. "I leave at midnight.

Together they want down a pathway toward a little rose covered summer house, bright with many hanging lanterns. His eyes took in every feature and then he seemed to see the roses for the first time. She saw a smile touch his lips and change his face to the face of the boy, carefree and happy, she remembered in the lost years of her youth. Then the smile faded and his face grew stern and the lines in his forehead, that only time and sorrow can cut deeply, showed that youth had gone.

"Just the same beautiful Julie," he mused; "beautiful and unaffected! That was one of your chief charms for me. All the really lovely women I ever knew except you demanded men's homage. Aren't you ever going to look old like the rest of us?"

"Not while I manage to keep my heart young."

"How do you do that?"

"By dreams; foolish, perhaps, but they serve my purpose. Now tell me where you have been for the last five years? Kate tells me you are married. Where is your home?"

"You should have known that Kate was quite wrong. I shall never marry, Julie. I am just a rover. My interests are in the West and I spend most of my time now on a sheep ranch out there. I am getting old enough to want at least a nominal place to call home. It looks a good deal like a hunting lodge, skins on the floors and trophies of the chase on the walls, but my dogs are there and my pipes and my big wood fires conjure dreams, happy dreams, too; but somehow, they don't keep me young, Julie, like yours keep you."

Telford stepped through the rose hung doorway. "Mrs. Brandon says we can go in and dance, Miss Julie. Would you care to go?"

"A little later, perhaps, I'll be in. As old time friends, Mr. Shields and I are finding many things to talk about."

When Telford had withdrawn, Phil turned to her, eyes flashing and hands tense with some subdued passion.

"I love you, Julie. Make me forget you! In pity, do! Ever since I left you, I have traveled over the plains and sailed the seas, seeing your face everywhere and hearing your voice across the empty years."

"Take me back with you to the lodge in the wilderness, Phil! Let me make it a real home for you there!"

"Julie," he cried, "what are you saying?"

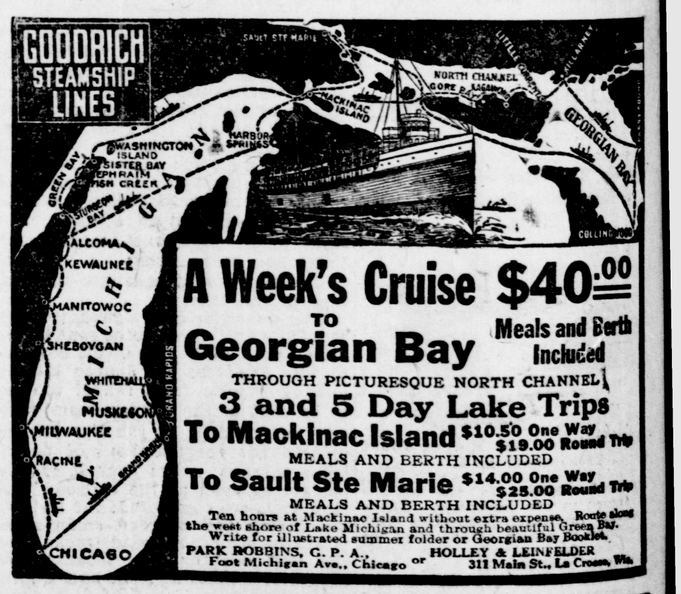

"That I love you too. I didn't know until through foolish jealousy I sent you away. Every June since that happy one we had together, I have worn three pink roses all the time. Do you remember the night you picked three roses for me in mother's garden? One was for love, you said, one for faith and one for hope.'

To Keep Matches Dry.

A novel method of carrying matches on one's person in the wet without having them become soaked is to immerse a box of safety matches in paraffin until a solid cake is formed, out of which a match may be broken when desired. When the match is scratched the coating of "waterproof" is rubbed off its top and also off the composition abrasive on the box, thus permitting the match to ignite. This is a simple expedient, which will be sure to appeal to all woodsmen, professional or amateur.—Outing.

Vanished Farthings.

The farthing was once quite an important little coin. In the fourteenth century, for instance, London's bakers and publicans, by order of the lord mayor, were obliged to supply farthings' worth of bread and beer to the poor. "No change" excuses were impossible. Supplies of farthings were to be obtained at the Guildhall, and the baker or publican who "ran out" of change was forced to "treat" patrons to their farthings' worth of bread and beer. Today one rarely sees the coin.—London Tatler

INSTALL U. S. FLAGG

ROME, June 13.—The American flag, after today, will be one of the permanent decorations at the Rome College of Missionaries of La Salette. The flag was installed by the Rev. John P. Neale, LL. D., of the La Salette college at Westerly, Rhode Island, after it had been blessed by Father Superior of the order of the Missionaries of La Salette. The Feast of Tagues was the day chosen for the inauguration of the flag, owing to the fact that eight languages are spoken by the missionary students of the college.

Her Idea of It.

Mr. Gotham—I see the Bedouin marriage does not take much time. The bridegroom cuts the throat of a sheep and spills the blood on his father-in-law's threshold, and it is all over.

Mrs. Gotham—No, it's not, either. Somebody's got to clean up the muss, and I suppose it is the poor bride.—Yonkers Statesman

180 WISCONSINITES PHI BETA KAPPAS

List Printed for the First Time in the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine

MADISON, Wis., June 13. — The first authentic and complete list of graduates of the University of Wisconsin between the years 1859 and 1898 who have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary fraternity, has just appeared in the June number of the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine, which came from press Wednesday. Eligibility to membership in Phi Beta Kappa is based on scholarship. Because the Wisconsin chapter of the fraternity was not installed in the university until 1899, those who graduated before that date with scholastic records which would have entitled them to membership, were this year awarded the honor by vote of the Wisconsin chapter.

A total of 180 graduates was elected, of whom 107 were men and 73 women. Of the 73 women, 44 are married and 29 are unmarried. In 8 instances both a man and wife were elected to membership.

The two oldest members are Elbert O. Hand of Racine, Wis., and Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago, who both were graduated with the class of 1859. From the twenty classes graduated between 1859 and 1879, 42 were selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa. The classes of 1893 and 1898 have the most representatives, 13, while the classes of 1860, 1861, 1865, 1867, 1868, 1870, and 1883 have one representative each. The class of 1862, 1863, 1864, 1866, 1869, are not represented in the society. Sixty-one of the 180 new members are either teachers or professors, while forty-four are judges or attorneys, and 13 are physicians.

Some of the prominent people elected include: Governor F. E. McGovern, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago; Judge Farlin Q. Ball of Chicago; Herbert E. Bolton, professor of history in the University of California; Joseph E. Davies; Congressman John J. Esch; Charles N. Gregory, dean of the law school of George Washington university; Balthasar H. Meyer of the interstate commerce commission; Dr. A. J. Oschner of Chicago; F. W. McNair, president of the Michigan College of Mines.

He Had a Suggestion.

A Sunday school class was studying a missionary lesson, and the teacher was telling of customs among the Eskimos. She said:

"I have read an article by a traveler among these people, and it is the duty of the Eskimo's wife to chew her husband's clothes to keep them soft and pliable, as the skins get stiff, and therefore a woman is chosen according to her chewing ability, every man endeavoring to get a wife with strong teeth."

One little boy, with a look of intense nausea on his face, blurted out:

"Why don't they get 'em a billy-goat?"—National Food Magazine.

The Mystery of Death.

O death, how bitter is the thought of thee! How speedy thy approach! How stealthy thy steps! How uncertain thy hour! How universal thy sway! The powerful cannot escape thee; the wise know not how to avoid thee; the strong have no strength to oppose thee; the rich cannot bribe thee with their treasure. Thou art a hammer that always strikes, a sword that is never dull, a net into which all fall, a prison into which all must enter, a sea on which all must venture, a penalty which all must suffer, a tribute which all must pay. O death, death, implacable enemy to the human race, why didst thou enter into the world?—Luis de Granada.

No Fun at All.

"Did you have a pleasant afternoon, dear?" asked the man.

"No!" snapped the wife. "I had a perfectly beastly afternoon!"

"Why, I thought you were going down to buy a new hat?"

"I was, and I did."

"Then why didn't you have a good time? I thought"—

"Yes, you thought. Well, I'll tell you. I intended to have a lovely time buying that hat, but they had just what I wanted at the first store I went to, so I had to buy it. And there wasn't anything to do for the rest of the day, so I couldn't enjoy myself one bit!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Most Serious Problem of To-day, Due Largely to Sickness. Read This Letter.

Clifton Mills, Ky.—That the high cost of living is due largely to sickness, especially among the women folk, no one can doubt, but in the following letter from Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of this place, it is brought more forcibly home to us. "Before I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, my back and head would hurt so bad, day and night, I thought the pain would kill me. I was unable to attend to any of my household duties.

I had only taken three bottles of Cardui, when I began to feel like a new woman. Within a few months I gained 35 pounds, and now, I not only do all my own housework and washing, but, most of the time, run a big water mill, while my husband runs the farm.

I wish every suffering woman would give Cardui a trial, for I am sure it would help them, as it has me."

At an expense of $3.00 for three bottles of Cardui, Mrs. Woods regained her health, and is now able to attend to the numerous duties, which, formerly, she either had to hire done, or neglect, thus increasing her cost of living.

Lady reader, are you suffering from any of the ailments so common to your sex? Wouldn't it be worth a few dollars to you to feel well enough to look after your daily work?

Try Cardui.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION MEETS IN TOMAH

TOMAH, Wis., June 13.—The fifty-seventh annual session of the La Crosse Valley Baptist association which was held in Tomah this week was brought to a close on Thursday afternoon after one of the best attended and most instructive sessions ever held. The various pastors and lay delegates who were in attendance rendered a splendid program. The address, "The Missionary," by Miss Anna Nelson, missionary to the Hopi Indians in Arizona, was very instructive and delivered in her usual fluent style. Miss Nelson, a former Tomah girl has been in the missionary work for the past seven years. After her address to the association fifty dollars was raised by subscription to buy an organ for her colony on her return to Arizona. Wednesday evening the church was crowded when the Rev. F. W. C. Meyers of the First Baptist church of Milwaukee, gave a stirring address on "The Stranger Within thy gates." The able and well known orator made a noble appeal on behalf of the immigrant and by common sense mingled with a few jokes carried his vast audience with him. The session closed Thursday afternoon following a picnic dinner at the Indian school. About thirty automobiles carried the visitors to and from the grounds.

Davy Jones, who has starred as first baseman for some year with the Detroit Tigers this week announces his permanent retirement from the game and with his wife and family are in Tomah at the home of Mrs. Jones' sister, Mrs. F. L. Feiting. They expect to spend a month here after which they will return to Detroit, Mich., where Davy will take charge of his drug store. Davy has always been a great favorite here, having held a position in Burlin's drug store for some time. He has always been very popular and a great favorite and his ball playing has always been watched with keen interest by the fans.

Mrs. Arnold Schultz and children arrived the first part of the week from Milwaukee and will make an extended visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Birr on Superior avenue.

Mr. Harry Buss of Merrill visited at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Addison Cady the first of the week.

Dr. J. I. Moseley of Mancelona, Mich., who has been visiting Tomah friends is visiting his old home at Cataract at present.

Miss Grace Cassells, who has been teaching in Waupaca for the past year is home for the summer vacation.

Mr. Otto Gendrich was a business caller at Milwaukee on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. Jewett of Sparta who has spent the past mont hwith her father, Mr. John King, returned home on Thursday.

Mrs. Minnie Peterson of Menominee deputy for the Beavers Reserve fund fraternity was calling on Tomah friends this week.

Mrs. J. H. Laing of Ridgetown, Ontario, Canada, was a Tomah visitor this week.

Miss Margaret H. Smith who has been attending Ripon college for the past year, returned home Thursday.

Mr. Mike Finnican is spending a few days in La Crosse this week.

The following trustees were elected Wednesday for Oak Grove cemetery at their annual meeting Wednesday afternoon: Oscar King, Peter Johnson and William Grutzmacher.

Paul Austin has been visiting with Sparta friends this week.

LEARN TO LIVE.

It is by the real that we exist. It is by the ideal that we live. Would you realize the difference? Animals exist; man lives. To live is to understand. To live is to smile at the present. It is to be able to see over the wall of the future. To live is to have justice, truth, reason, devotion, probity, sincerity. To live is to know what one can do and should do. Life is conscience. —Victor Hugo.

Inclosing a Stamp.

"Every day you learn something new," remarked a man that was busy opening letters. "I get about fifty letters a week with a postage stamp stuck on the corner for a reply. There is only one man in America that knows how to stick a stamp on a letter."

"What's his stunt?" demanded the friend.

"Instead of sticking the stamp by a corner, so that I have to take a daub of mucilage to make that corner stay down, he sticks it by the middle, so that when I use it again all the edges are gummed, and the little spot in the center does not matter."—New York Sun.

Coal Consumption.

It gives an impressive idea of the immensity of the international trade carried on in vessels to read that 55,000,000 tons of coal are consumed in a year in the furnaces of ships employed in international commerce.

NEGRO SLAYER IS LYNCHED BY MOB

Taken from Officers with Little Trouble and Hung; Body Is Burned

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 13—Bennie Simmons, a negro, charged with the murder of Susie Church, aged 16, at Cogar, was lynched by a mob of 500 persons from Cogar at Anardako, at 3 o'clock this morning. Simmons had been in the county jail at Anadarko and was transferred to the old government prison when the officers learned that the mob was coming. He was found there and taken with but little resistance on the part of officers. The negro was hanged to a cottonwood tree near the town, his body saturated with oil, burned and riddled with bullets.

FORMER RICH POET DIES IN POVERTY

ST. CLOUD, Minn., June 13.—James Davies, 85 years old, the oldest newsboy in America, died at St. Joseph's Old Folks home here yesterday. He had been an inmate four months.

Davies' life was surrounded with pathetic incidents. At one time he was well known as a writer and gained some reputation as a poet.

He had accumulated a fortune before he was 50 years old. This was lost through the extravagances of relatives.

Without money and left alone he was thrown on his own resources when 70 years old. He started to make his living as a newsboy in Duluth, but he made only enough to keep body and soul together.

As the years went by he became more and more infirm, but refused to accept charity. Finally he became almost helpless, and a friend brought him to the old folks' home.

The body will be taken to Madison, Wis., for burial.

DRAFT PETITION TO CONGRESSMAN

North Siders and Onalaska Motor Boat Men Would Deepen Black River Channel

The communication to Congressman John J. Esch, from the joint committee of the citizens of Onalaska and the "deep channel committee" of the North Side Progressive league, in regard to the deepening of the channel of Black river from the mouth of Black rived to Onalaska has been drafted and will be sent to the congressman with the request that he do all in his power to see that the proper authorities be notified of the need of the citizens of La Crosse and Onalaska for a deeper channel.

With the dropping of the water of the last week in Black river, in places there is barely enough water for the larger motor boats to get through, and parts of the river will be entirely blocked in the middle of the season when the water reaches a low mark.

For the past several seasons motor boat owners and those who use the river have endeavored to have Hammond Chute, the cutoff from Black river into the Mississippi, closed. It is thought that if the stream were closed the water would be at a higher stage in the river at the low water mark.

WOULD HELP PEOPLE

CHINESE GIRL OUTSTRIPS AMERICANS IN HIGH SCHOOL TO LEARN TO HELP COUNTRYWOMEN

DENVER, Col., June 13.—"The women of my country need me and when I am prepared to take up the work that is ahead of me, then I shall respond to the call and abandon the customs of your people and take up those of my own." Mary Hung, a 16 year old Chinese girl, who today stands higher than her American competitors for academic honors at the Denver manual training high school, thus discussed for the United Press today her ambitions to prepare herself for a life of usefulness among her own people. Though herself a native of Colorado, she is educating herself to go back to the land of her parents and teach the women of her race advanced ideas in civilized living. She is the daughter of W. Q. Hung, a wealthy Chinese who has lived in Colorado for many years.

"The women of China need physicians of their own sex, not only to minister to them when they are ill, but to teach them how to keep well, to live hygienic lives and to improve their mode of living generally," said the little almond eyed miss. "And because I feel called to serve them, I shall study and work until I feel that I am fitted to answer the call. My, no; the women of China no longer bind their feet. That custom was dropped some time ago. But there is need of much further advancement among the women of my race. Knowing this, I feel it is my duty to give them the benefit of the advantages I have enjoyed." An unusually attractive girl is Mary Hung and thoroughly Americanized in everything. She loves to dance and ride horseback and play tennis and go to the theaters. But over in China the women do not do these things, and when this Chinese girl goes back to them she must sacrifice all the pleasures she has had in this country.

EXPECT BIG CROWDS

EXTENSIVE ADVERTISING IN HUNDRED MILE RADIUS CARRIED ON FOR EAGLES' CARNIVAL

Interest is increasing in the Eagles' carnival and most of the local merchants are going to decorate their places of business. Railroads will run excursions and negotiations are under way with the steamboat companies to handle the crowds during the week. For the past week the committee have been busy advertising in the adjacent towns within one hundred miles radius and as a result huge crowds are looked for.

The contest for boys and girls was formally opened yesterday and it is expected to become quite lively. The contest for the boy's bicycle is as follows:

Donald Dumke, 35; Chester Hall, 15; Norman Hafner, 5.

The girls are represented by only two contestants but more will be in the race today:

Carmen Friemark, 20; Dorothy Shaffer, 15.

The local committee will have several new innovations this year at the carnival and should make a big success as the funds are to be devoted to the purchase of a home for the aerie. The order is a fast growing one and is comprised of many of our best citizens.

Officials of Flag day ceremonies here say that they have received word from practically every American embassy and legation in foreign lands to the effect that the day will be observed in some formal way. Public school children will spend at least one-half the day singing patriotic songs and listening to addresses. The local committee claimed today that a million flags would be swung from many residences throughout Greater New York tomorrow.

25 PER CENT LEFT OF G. A. R. VETERANS

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Of the great army of veterans of the civil war, who passed in grand review before President Grant at the white house to the number of nearly 200,000, at the close of hostilities, less than 25 per cent were alive to participate in the annual thirtieth of May celebration last month. Upon request of the United Press, officials at the pension office today looked up the records of veterans of wars of the United States. This compilation showed that on May 30th last, there were in various parts of the world 457,000 survivors of the civil war. On the same day there were less than 1,000 survivors of the Mexican war. There is not the name of a single survivor of the war of 1812 on the Pension office records, but there are about 200 widows of veterans of the second war with Great Britain who are today drawing pensions.

The average age of the civil war veteran is today is 71. According to to the average death rate of the veterans of that conflict it is estimated tha here will be 40,000 less civil war pensioners next year than there were this year, and that the deaths for 1915 will number approximately 50,000. In ten years, pension office officials declared today, the United States will be paying no more pensions to civil war veterans. In five years it is expected there will be no more Mexican veterans.

In the last two years it has cost the government about $200,000,000 annually to pay pensions, and this year it costs more owing to the new "dollar-a-day" pension law which has become effective. Last year the outlay was about $154,000,000, which included the upkeep of the pension office here.

FIGHT SCOTT BILLS

CAMPAIGN OF LITERATURE BEGUN TO PROTEST AGAINST REWRITING FIRE INSURANCE CODE

MADISON, Wis., June 13.—Protests against the passage of four bills introduced in the senate by Senator Scott, rewriting the fire insurance code and compelling rating bureaus once each year to report all transactions to the insurance commissioner, have begun to appear in the upper house in the form of long letters, typewritten on the same stationery but signed by citizens of different localities of the state. A blank space is left for the writing in of the name of the senator to whom the letter is to be directed, and space is left at the bottom for the signatures of citizens. The letter says that the assembly disapproved of the provisions of a similar bill by a vote of 61 to 25.

"Fire insurance companies are not public service corporations," says the letter. "Neither do they deal in commodities, nor are they common carriers, whose results of doing business can be readily ascertained, but they deal in contingent contracts, the liability under which, because of the moral as well as the physical hazards cannot be ascertained until the contracts have expired. These bills aim to place all companies on the same basis, regardless of the apparent difference in ability of management, or otherwise, and make the commissioner of insurance the final dictator.

"It will readily be seen that the lodging of so much power in one individual will open up an avenue for great political power, which certainly would work results either unfair to the companies or to the public."

The Junior Prom given by the junior class of the high school will be held in the Hixon Gymnasium tonight and one of the largest crowds in the history of the graduation week is expected. The prom is being conducted on a different plan this year than it was in former years. It always has been the custom to hold the prom on the same night as the commencement exercises were held. But this year the commencement exercises were held on Thursday night which left Friday night for the Prom. This plan is much the better as it makes the commencement week less strenuous than when both events were held on the same night.

Holding the Prom in the Hixon annex does away with the great expense of renting a hall and the other expenses which go with such arrangements. The price of the tickets had to be made to meet the expenses. This year with but few expenses it has been deemed advisable to make the admission price but fifty cents.

The gymnasium is being decorated for the event and will present a very pretty spectacle to the dancers. It is expected that many of the alumni of the school will be present together with this year's graduates who will be the guests of the juniors.

The SONG of a SUFFRAGET

By H. A. M'NITT

"Oh, I'm a fighting suffragette;
(Her voice it thrilled with pride)
Busy as I can be, you bet—
That fact won't be denied.
I rose this morn at break o' day,
While all was still and calm,
And armed myself for bloody fray
With broadax, brick and bomb.
At eight my first real triumph came,
Thanks be to dynamite,
The home of old Lord What's-His-Name
Is now a pleasing sight.

"At ten the premier's neck I wrung
And kicked him down a stairs;
Then to a lofty beam I hung
Tim by his stiffened hairs.
The Thames flowed by; upon its bank
There stood an old M. P.
All trembling to his knees he sank
And pity begged of me.
His plaintive cries for help arose
Above the city's din,
How swift, how dark that river flows!
But then, I pushed him in.

"At two I blew the city hall
Among the clouds so high;
Up went the mayor like a ball—
He's floating in the sky.
At four the London bridge I burned;
At six derailed a train;
And then toward home my steps I turned,
To rest me up again.
Now, tho' I'm tired and worn out quite,
I still must do one thing:
I know I cannot sleep tonight,
Until I've slapped the king."

For the SUMMER RESORT

Edited by MayManton

THAT current events are reflected in the fashions of any period is a well known fact, but seldom has it happened that so many picturesque elements could be collected at one time. This year we have the long waisted Balkan effect, the Russian blouse and costume and the sash that is wound around the body suggestive of the Further East.

The Russian blouse lends itself to the composed costume or the one of two materials with singular success, and the blouse of striped material over plain or of plain material over a fancy one makes a fashionable effect, while such costumes are very generally becoming. Sashes always seem to suit summer fabrics, and this year both ribbon and silk are used.

The favorite bright colors on white are really fascinating and there are so many ways of arranging and bowing them that it might almost be said no two are alike. A pretty fancy is to let the color of the parasol, the trimming of the hat and the sash match, and parasols, by the way, are uncommonly varied. For the summer resort the bright colored and flowered effects and trimmings are in every way correct and they add to the general effect.

AT the extreme left of the picture is shown a costume of belted blouse and simple skirt that is so practical and available for so many occasions as to render it somewhat especially worthy of mention. It is a season of Russian and belted effects and this coat that can be worn with a silk or a leather belt is most attractive as well as thoroughly comfortable. As it is shown in the picture, it is made of striped éponge while the skirt is of plain and the costume idea is obtained by trimming of the plain material. One sees coats of this kind, however, made of really bright colored broadcloth and silk worn over white gowns and they give an extremely picturesque effect at summer resorts. It has been said again and again that this is a season of bright color. Inevitably, these bright colors are subdued during the really warm weather but their influence remains and buff coats are much worn over white, some of the dull, lovely gray-greens make lovely effects and there are shades of blue and even of the favorite cerise that do not seem over warm. A coat of the kind makes a very valuable addition to the summer wardrobe. For tennis and the like, it can be made from blazer flannel. The skirt is one of the prettiest of those that are open at the sides, for the openings are very modest and the overlapped edges seem to render them rather natural than premeditated. It is cut in just two pieces with a little drapery at the sides.

WHAT is familiarly known as the one-piece dress, or really one in semi-princesse style with bodice and skirt joined, is perhaps the most satisfactory that any woman can own. To begin with, it is in the very height of style; in addition, it is always easy to adjust, it is certain to give a neat, trim appearance and the girdle or sash can be made as simple or as elaborate as the occasion requires. In the one shown here, made of a dotted material, there is a pretty suggestion in the treatment of the sash. The gown is a pretty foulard and the lace on the silk is very dainty and very attractive. The very simple skirt is made in only three pieces and the bodice is a quite plain one with what is known as set-in sleeves. It is easy to see that this model could be copied in voile as well as silk or the still simpler dimity for morning wear; in fact, dimity made in just this way with embroidery in place of lace and a plain belt or simple girdle would make a very charming morning frock that could be laundered with the greatest ease. Whether the sleeves shall stop below the elbows or be cut to the wrists is a matter left to the individual discretion this season. These that are finished with double frills are very charming but many women will like the long sleeves and they easily can be extended and finished with rolled-over cuffs. Almost everybody wears open necks this summer whether they are becoming or whether they are not, whether throats are pretty or whether they are not, but a dainty little chemisette of net is an accessory that should not be overlooked. It is dainty and very apt to be becoming and can be adjusted under such a blouse as this one to add greatly to its usefulness.

THE plain frock trimmed with one of the new flowered silks that is shown in the next figure is designed for young girls and for small women for whom girlish styles are appropriate. The little drapery on the skirt is very pretty yet it does not detract from the general simplicity of the style. The seamless shoulders and the sleeves that are joined at the elongated line are important features. They are to be noted on the newest and smartest models and they are always becoming to girlish figures. The unusual shaping of these sleeves makes an individual feature. There is another advantage in the blouse of this kind, too, and it may be of benefit to whisper to the girl who is in haste to add to the summer wardrobe that they are extremely easy to make, the sleeves require no fitting and there are very few seams to be sewed. As the dress is shown in the picture, it is made of a plain crêpe finished silk and it is trimmed with silk in what is known as "Futurist" design, flowers printed in bright colors in rather flat tones. The girls who do not like such bright colors can vary the trimming or can make the entire gown of almost any seasonable fabric. The simple cotton voiles in Dresden effect are being much worn and are very daintily attractive. A very pretty little summer frock could be made from one of these with collar and sleeves of the same material in plain white or with sleeves matching the bodice and with just a little lace insertion or lace banding covering the connecting seams. There are wonderfully beautiful pongees showing tiny little rosebuds embroidered over them and the dress made of plain pongee with trimming of the embroidered would be charming. The soft girdle and the big, soft bow give a smart touch but the girdle is a somewhat important feature of summer styles and allows a great deal of liberty. The shrewd girl chooses the sash or girdle that renders her own figure at its best and it is always wise to adopt an original touch in these accessories. The sleeves are so simple that they can be made longer without the least difficulty and, if transparent material is used, long sleeves are always pretty. A great many girls are finishing them with frills of lace that fall over the hands.

ALL the broché materials are fashionable and broché effects are found in the simplest cottons as well as in the most costly silks. The gown with the Russian blouse is pretty made of the broché crêpe illustrated but it would also be attractive made of a simple broché cotton or of a plain material. The blouse is in real Russian style, closed from the left shoulder and held by a belt but, nevertheless, the peplum is separate and joined to the bodice portion. The skirt is an excellent one for such material, made in five gores but with the overlapped edges and side closing that are fashionable. Such a gown would be charming made from charmeuse satin or from crêpe de chine. It would be very pretty made from one of the India silks that never were lovelier than they are this season and it is quite appropriate for many cotton materials, the list of which is a long one. These days we trim cotton with silk and silk with cotton and, consequently, it is easy to combine fabrics and colors to get a good effect. A smart effect could be obtained by making the blouse of one color and the skirt of another. For resorts and places of the kind, bright colored blouses are liked over white skirts; in fact, the blouse alone made of a pretty crêpe or some other thin silk would be a valuable asset to wear over any white skirt or whole gown. Whether the sash shall be worn after this manner or treated in some other way or whether a belt shall be substituted is a matter for each wearer to determine. The secret of good dressing is the art of rendering style at its best and to do this, the individual style should be studied. In spite of the fact that present fashions have a tendency to obliterate lines, they are still important and seekers after good effects should bear that in mind.

Children's frocks were never lovelier than they are just now and the two illustrated make good examples. It will be noted that each one is made with a draped sash, and draped sashes are greatly liked. The frock of flowered voile is made with the body portion and the skirt in one. The sash is slipped under trimming bands to give a very distinctive touch. The sleeves are sewed to the armholes without fullness so that they can be made longer or shorter as each mother may choose. Made just as pictured here, the frock is a dressy one for afternoon wear but, if the trimming bands and sash were omitted, it would be just a plain little frock in which to pass the morning hours. Mothers who do not like lace on dresses for the younger children will find this model pretty made with the neck and sleeve edges scalloped and without the bands. The sash can be worn or not as occasion suggests. The skirt portion is laid in an inverted plait under each arm and one at the center back so that there is ample fullness for the active youngster and, at the same time, the fashionable effect is maintained. It seems hardly kind to speak of high neck and long sleeves but there are children who require them and the dress could be finished in that way without difficulty. Lawn and dimity seem the prettiest materials for little children for the summer months but there are a great many novelties

EVERYTHING that gives the Balkan idea is fashionable and the dress of plain linen with the sash draped at the low line is suggestive of that style. The slashes through which the sash is passed are important for the treatment is essentially chic. The plait that is laid over each shoulder gives becoming lines and the sleeves make a part of the dress. They are joined over the shoulders, however, and it is there that the closing is made. In the picture, rose colored linen is trimmed with white embroidery but such a frock would be pretty made from the thinner lawns and the like as well as from the heavier linen and piqué. Indeed it could be used for almost any seasonable materials that are appropriate for girls of from eight to twelve. In place of the sash could be used the broad plain band. A pretty effect for a simple dress could be obtained by using linen and scalloping the neck and shoulder edges, omitting all trimming and finishing with just a plain band below the waist line, this band being of plain or of contrasting color as liked, or white linen would be lined with bands of color or narrow banding for the neck and sleeve edges, the lower edge being simply hemmed. Color is so wonderfully beautiful this season and it is used in such novel and interesting ways that there seems almost no limit to the possibilities of any design.

Matter of Judgment.

"So you suspect that men are quicker of judgment in practical matters than women?" asked her friend of the middle aged spinster.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "Men have heeded the warning of the newspapers and quit buying gold bricks, but women continue to marry for money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Man's Character.

According to an old French saying, "A man's character is like his shadow, which sometimes follows and sometimes precedes him and which is occasionally longer, occasionally shorter, than he is."

The man who makes a god of wealth is generally just about as crooked as the dollar mark.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 13.—The stock market opened active. There was irregularity of prices but the undertone seemed strong.

11 a. m.—A violent upward movement started about the middle of the first hour which checked buying except by the shorts, numbers of whom fled quickly to cover.

A great quantity of bear stop orders were caught on the advance. Reid-Moore stocks were particularly strong. American Can sold up to 25½ and Lehigh Valley to 147⅜, a fraction above the high mark of yesterday.

Steel was a little heavy and there was little trading in that issue.

Noon—The market was reactionary.

2 p. m.—The market was dull during the early afternoon.

The stock market closed strong.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 13.—Reports of rains along the Canadian line gave the wheat market a bearish tone at the start today and prices were down ⅜c at the start. Later news was that the rains had not been so general as at first reported, and when it became apparent that threatened crop damage from dry weather was not greatly checked, prices firmed a trifle.

Corn stocks were limited and prices rose ⅜ today after starting easier with wheat. New prices for the year, reached yesterday, were topped by the same margin.

Oats had a firm undertone. Shorts were doing some covering and there was a renewal of yesterday's demand for the country. Prices were up a fraction.

Provisions were firm on firm hog prices.

Wheat eased ¼ for each month in the afternoon and closed ⅜c lower than the day's opening.

A sharp drop in corn featured the afternoon trading, the options falling ⅜ to ⅝c when buying pressure ceased.

Oats had a ⅜c slump in the afternoon.

Provisions were a trifle easier just before the close and closed about steady with the day's opening.
